Communication brings understanding

The greatest asset of Man — communication. He continually attempts to master the art of communicating both his emotions and his ideas. Without it he would not have developed into a thinking animal, for communication brings understanding. It allows pieces of information gathered by individuals to be formed into knowledge; it enables man to convey feelings going deeper than hunger, pain, joy, or anger.

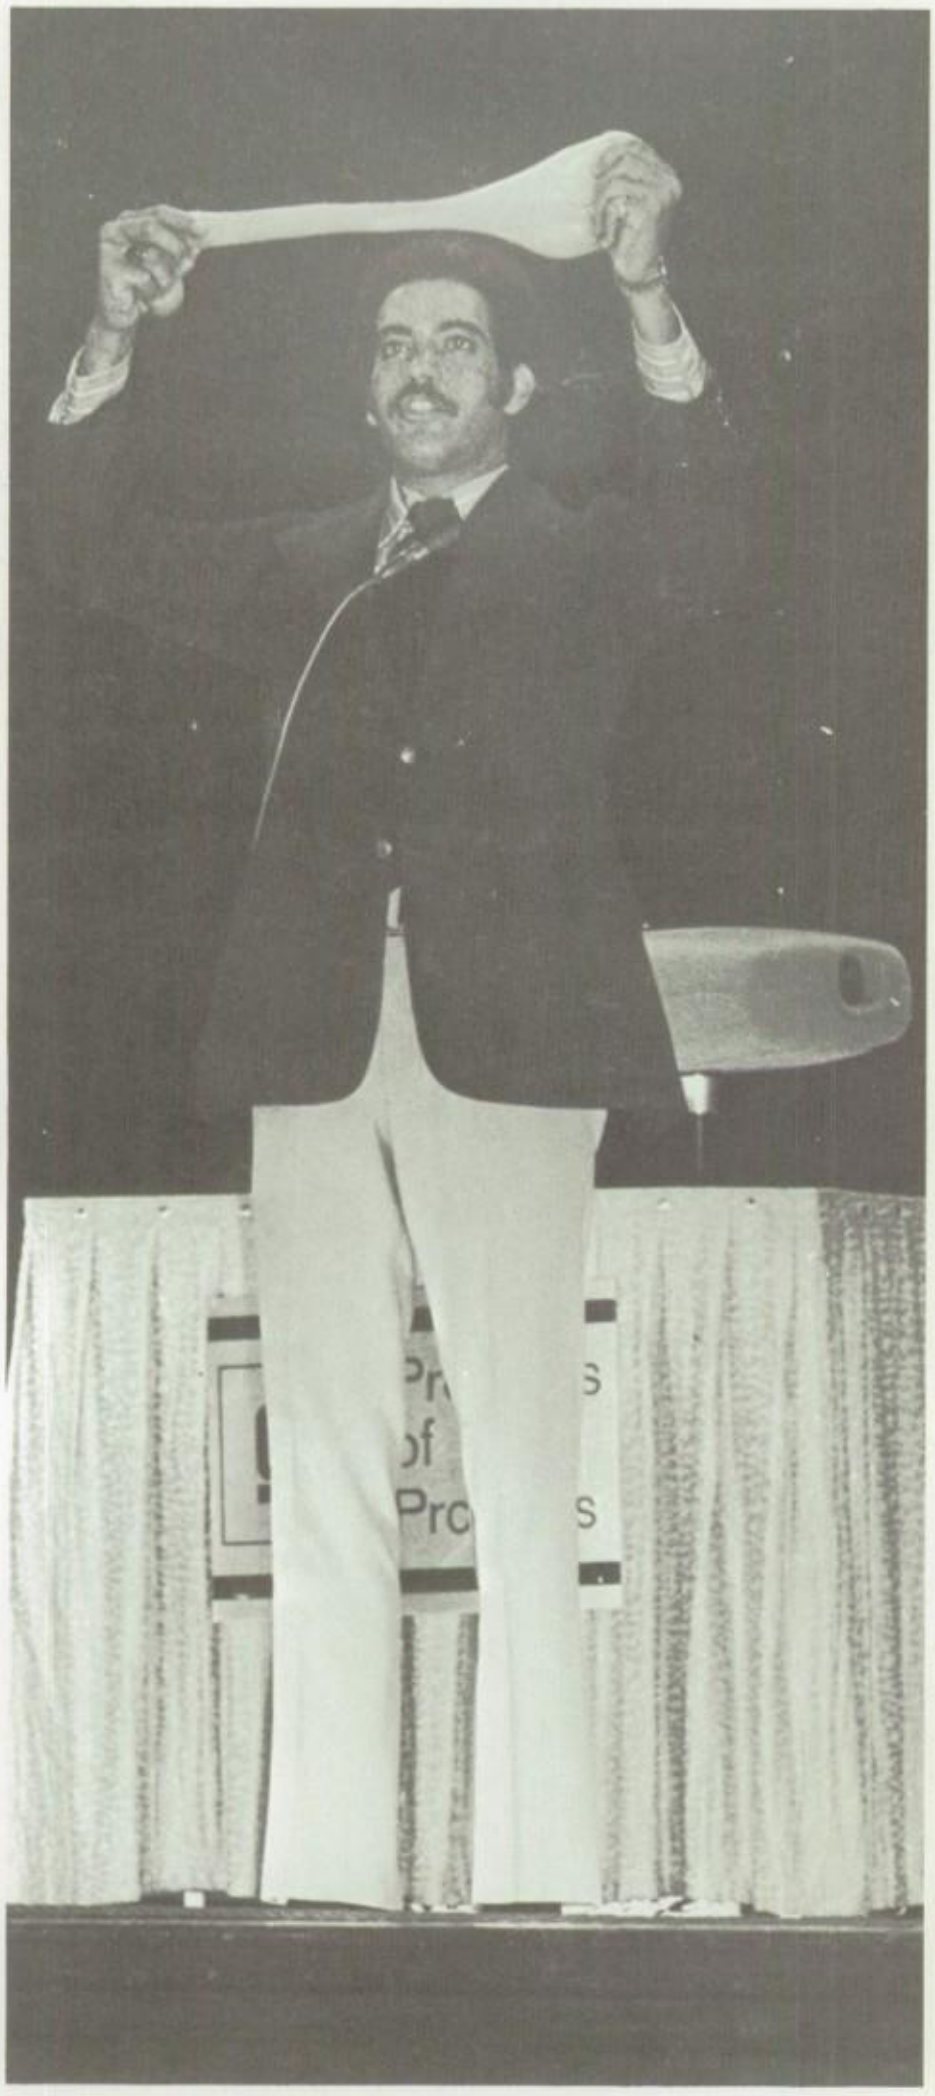
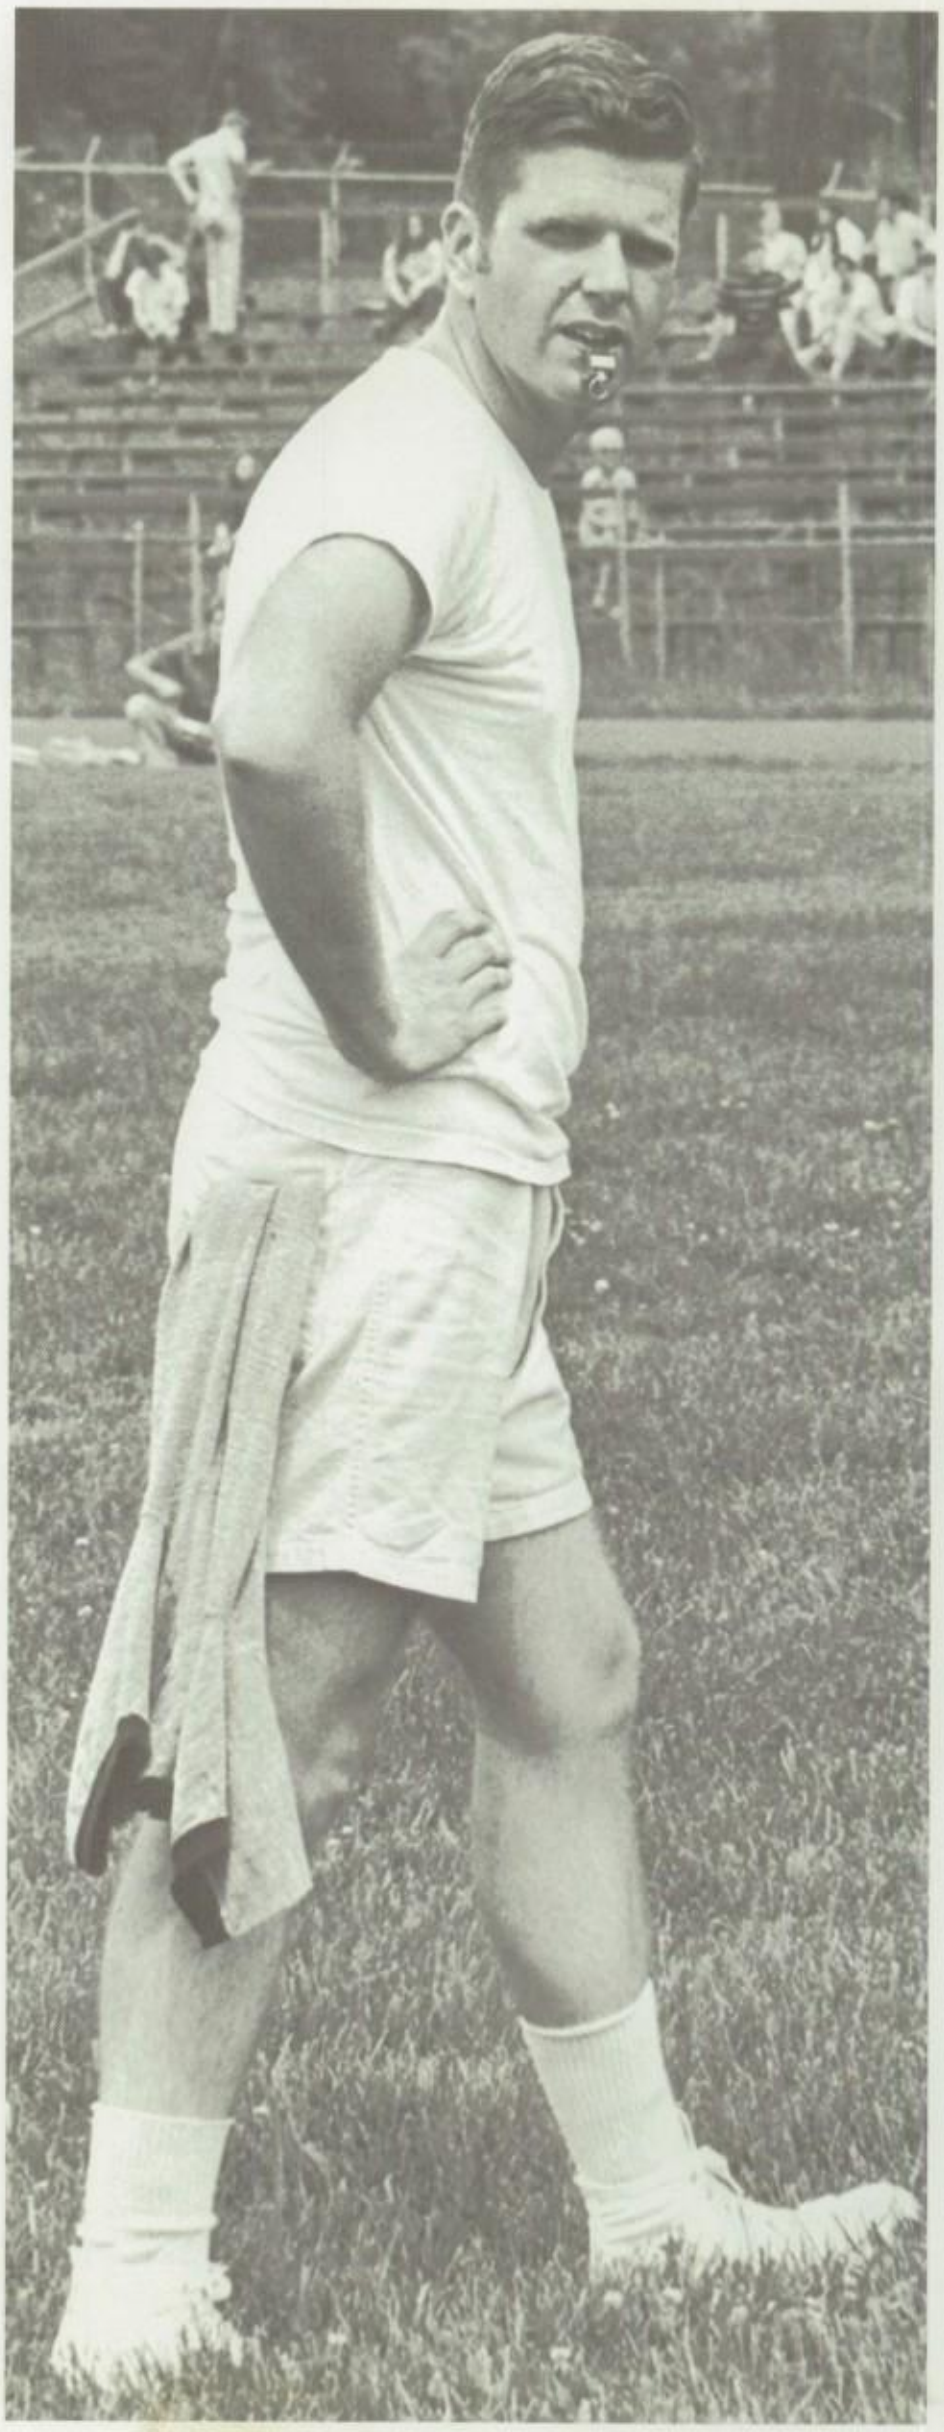
Man communicates in many ways

Man communicates in many ways: he speaks and finds a listener; he teaches and someone learns; he expresses an idea and discovers an ally.

Together we search

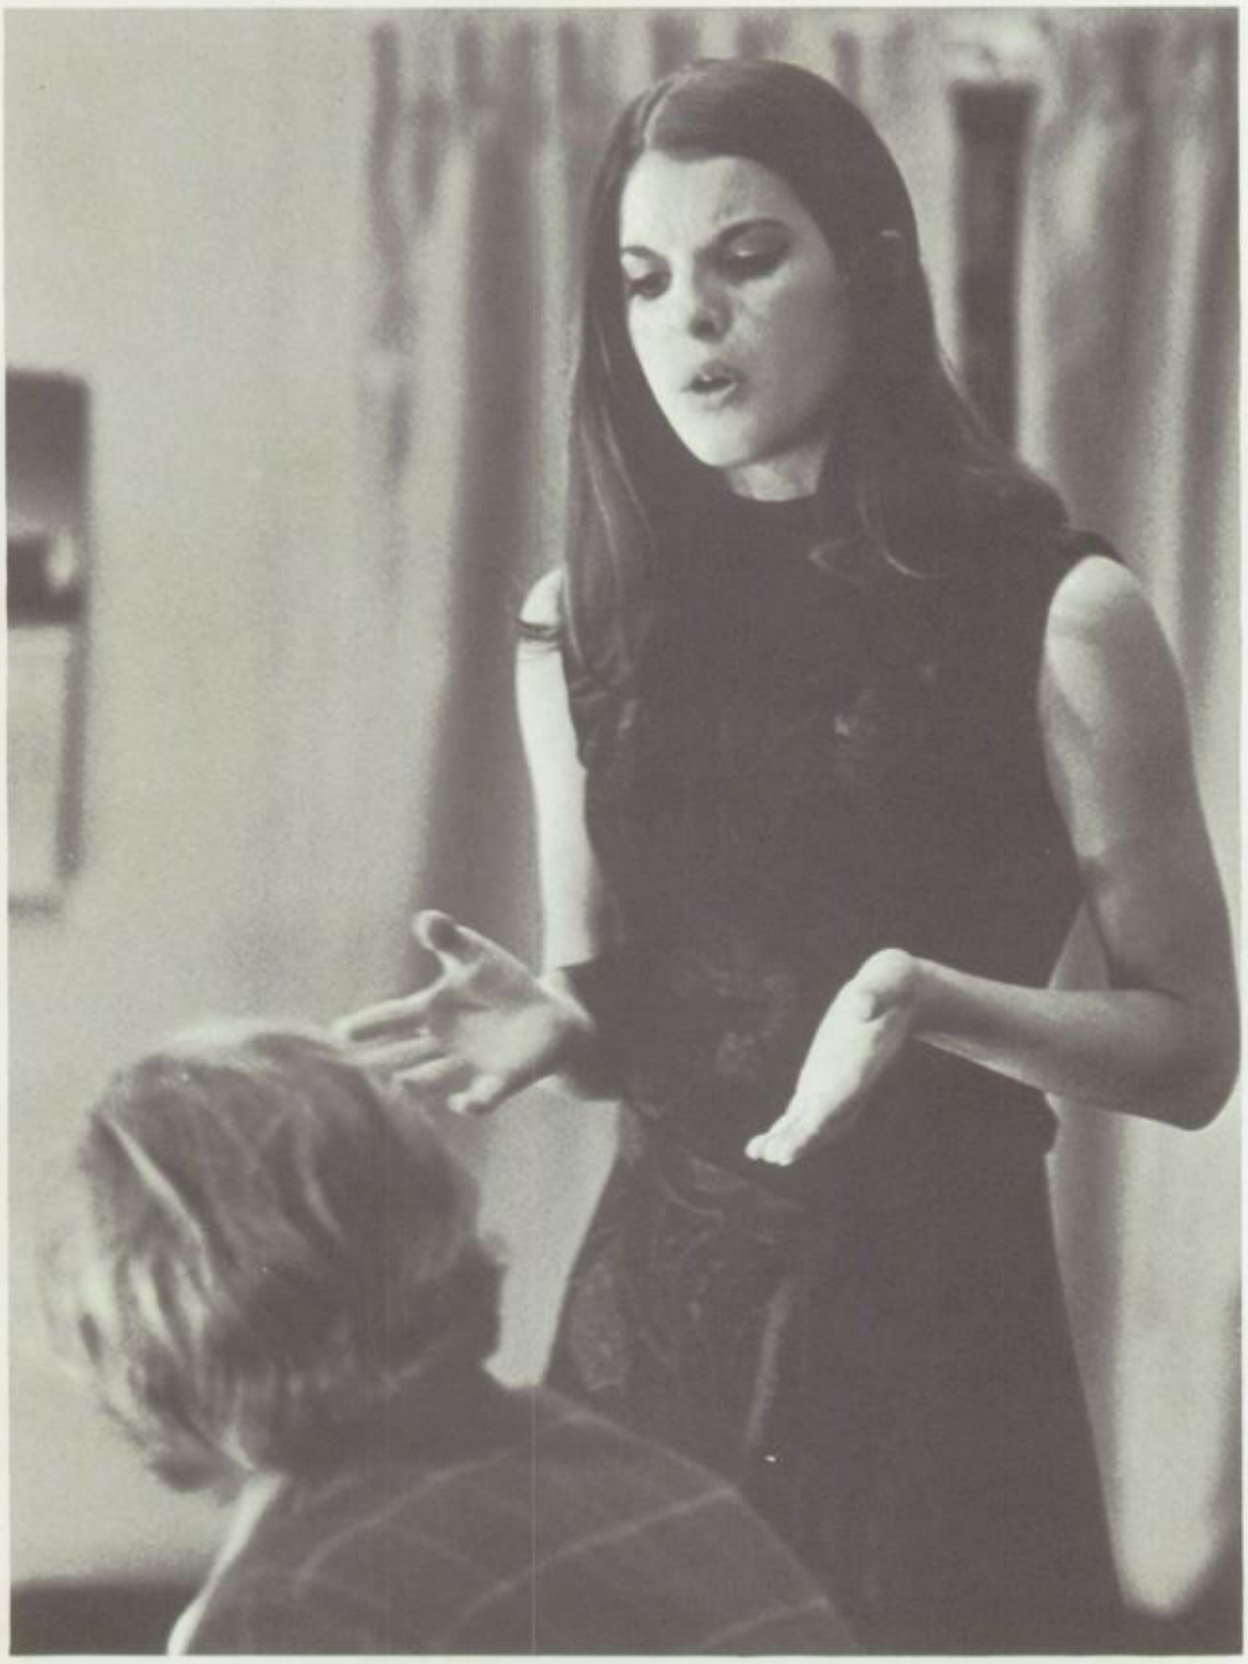
Communication brings unity among men. Together they search for answers to common problems; together they grow and progress. From one another they receive acceptance, strength, and companionship.

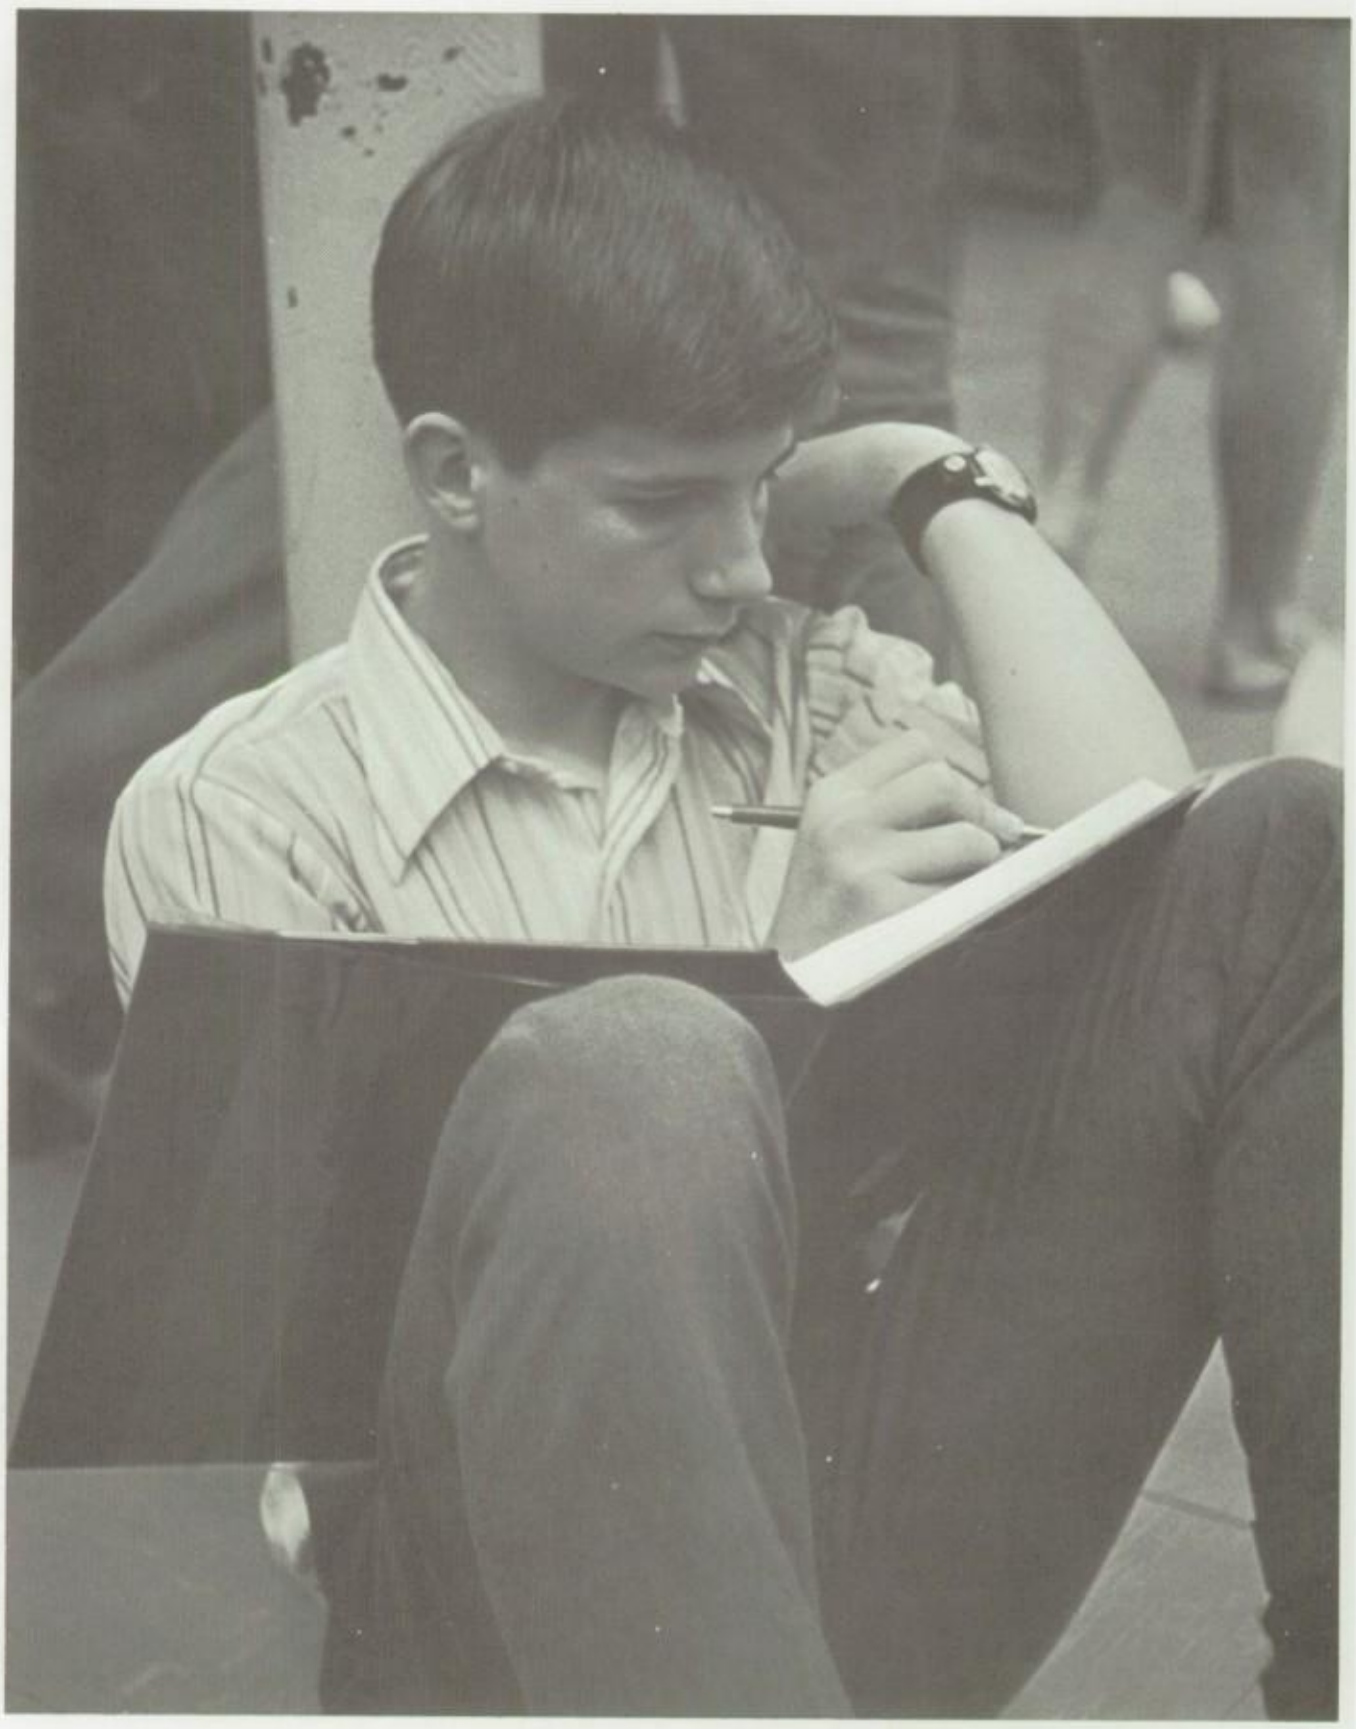




We must learn to admit the new

What happens when this link between people dissolves? Everything that was gained is lost. Quarrels, misunderstandings, and chaos result from a breakdown of communication. Sometimes people have developed such completely contrasting concepts that comprehension between them is impossible. To live peacefully, people must learn to admit the new.





Technology advances communication

In modern society, many technological improvements have been made for the advancement of communication. The invention of the telephone, radio, and television make it possible to spread news thousands of miles within minutes. Industrialization of the press paves the way for nationally, and internationally known newspapers, magazines, and books, all of which attempt to report an event or thought.

What of other forms of communication, forms that do not need a written or spoken language?

Sharing through wordless appreciation

Through music a person may impart powerful, overwhelming emotions. A painting, a sculpture, or any work of art affects those who gaze upon them in the same way. A feeling, a basic theme is transmitted. In nature, a scene of extreme beauty such as it alone can manufacture may elevate the soul to otherwise unattainable heights. That which penetrates, and is felt too deeply to be expressed in words, can only be shared in wordless appreciation.

YAMAHA

Man expresses himself

Because of the gift of communication, Man has become all that he is, has felt, and known, and glimpsed intangible wonders above the concrete sights that are obvious to his eyes. Because he can convey himself, he may form lasting bonds with another.

School life

The many varied activities of our lives are enhanced through communication with others. We experience a great deal from day to day which we would like to pass on. It is through the different means of communication that we bring understanding.

The reality of Spring sweeps through MV

SPRING ACTIVITIES

The end of the winter brings the season of spring. Along with it comes warm weather and the restlessness of students, for spring not only symbolizes birth and new growth but also the end of school. As if to augment this there is an increase in activities; elections, selections, powderpuff, a play, and the prom are some of these.

The buses, glimpsed through the branches of the dogwood seem to await the noisy arrival of students. Happiness to Sharon Wilkins is a Keyette corsage. Amid the excitement and tension during the Powderpuff Football Game, Nancy Beatie finds a moment to contemplate. Taking time off during an exhausting Drill Team routine, George Bernard poses voluptuously on the field.

ART SHOW

Last spring an art show was added to the usual parade of events. Being the first in many years, students enthusiastically entered exhibits including sculpture, paintings, pottery, crafts, sketches, pop art, and photography. Exhibits were judged and first, second, third and honorable mention ribbons were given in each area. Owners who wished to sell their projects set their own price and a percent of the sale price went to the Art Club which sponsored the affair.

The wax sculpture by Liz Reynolds has a majestic quality. What is it?

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

The Port Authority Navy Band, under the leadership of Chief Aimmerman, came to Mount Vernon to give a special performance to Juniors and Seniors. The band played modern jazz music, while Mike Taylor sang such songs as "Love One Another", and "We've Only Just Begun". The band also contained a special feature known as The ORD (Oliver Robinson Duo). This group performed several satires, one of how a television commercial would sound if consistingly switching to different channels. Most students were thoroughly enthused by them.

Another special program was that of Charles McPheeters, who related the story of his former drug addiction while strumming the guitar.

The ORD gets a big laugh from the audience for their skill as comedians. Two wind players of the Port Authority band play the melody. Charles McPheeters demonstrates his skill on the guitar while telling the story of his past drug addiction.

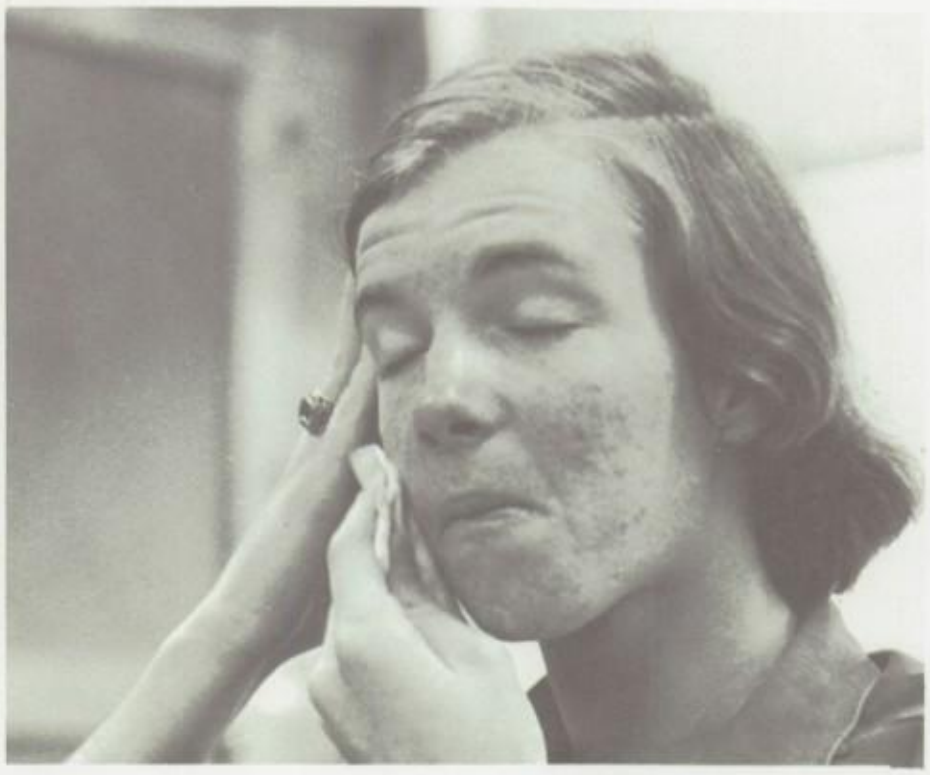
MARY, MARY

Mary, Mary, a comedy by Jean Kerr, brought a climax to the 1970-71 dramatic year. Only a small cast of six was necessary, including the double of the part of Oscar. The play was the story of a divorced publisher who planned to remarry, but reunited with his former wife upon finding that he still loved her. When the final curtain closed the audience responded with generous applause.

With a look of helplessness, Jerry Cianto walks into a squabble between Mark Woirol and Cheryl Peters. Jerry Cianto, as Oscar, is always ready to give his honest evaluation of the situation. Terri Garbor, hair up in curlers, readies herself before going out on stage. Catie Chester adds an expert touch to Mark Woirol's eyes before a performance. Russ Wells demonstrates the art of applying make-up. First, some alcohol to the face, then some pancake to bring out the skin tone, and as a final touch, some eye shadow.



A time to remember; a time for us

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM

The 1970-71 Prom was held at a convenient place for students — the Twin Bridges Marriott Motel. The theme for the occasion was "A Time For Us". In the course of the evening, the Prom Queen, Pat Wallace, was announced and crowned with a wreath of flowers. Couples danced throughout the night to music provided by Starr until the final hour arrived and it became just another of many high school memories.

Pat Wallace, Queen of the Prom, and Brian Campbell start the dancing as tradition requires. Stacking glasses is, for many, a favorite pastime at the Prom. Couples enjoy dancing to the music. Starr supplied the music for the event. Robert Hereford whispers sweet nothings in Sherry Kernan's ear. Mr. Jones swings with Miss Vick.

Passing a landmark

GRADUATION

Graduation is one of the landmarks in any student's life. It symbolizes a departure gate which provides various paths leading into the future. While some students will plunge themselves into the business world, others will seek further education. Graduation releases students from bondage and gives them their supreme wish — freedom! After seventeen years of school attendance, students have theoretically achieved a basic education that will aid them in their search for the meaning of life.

Caught in a moment of radiance, Anne Mason reflects the feeling of the Class of 1971. Every year it's the same story, only the faces change.

Fall . . . a time for football

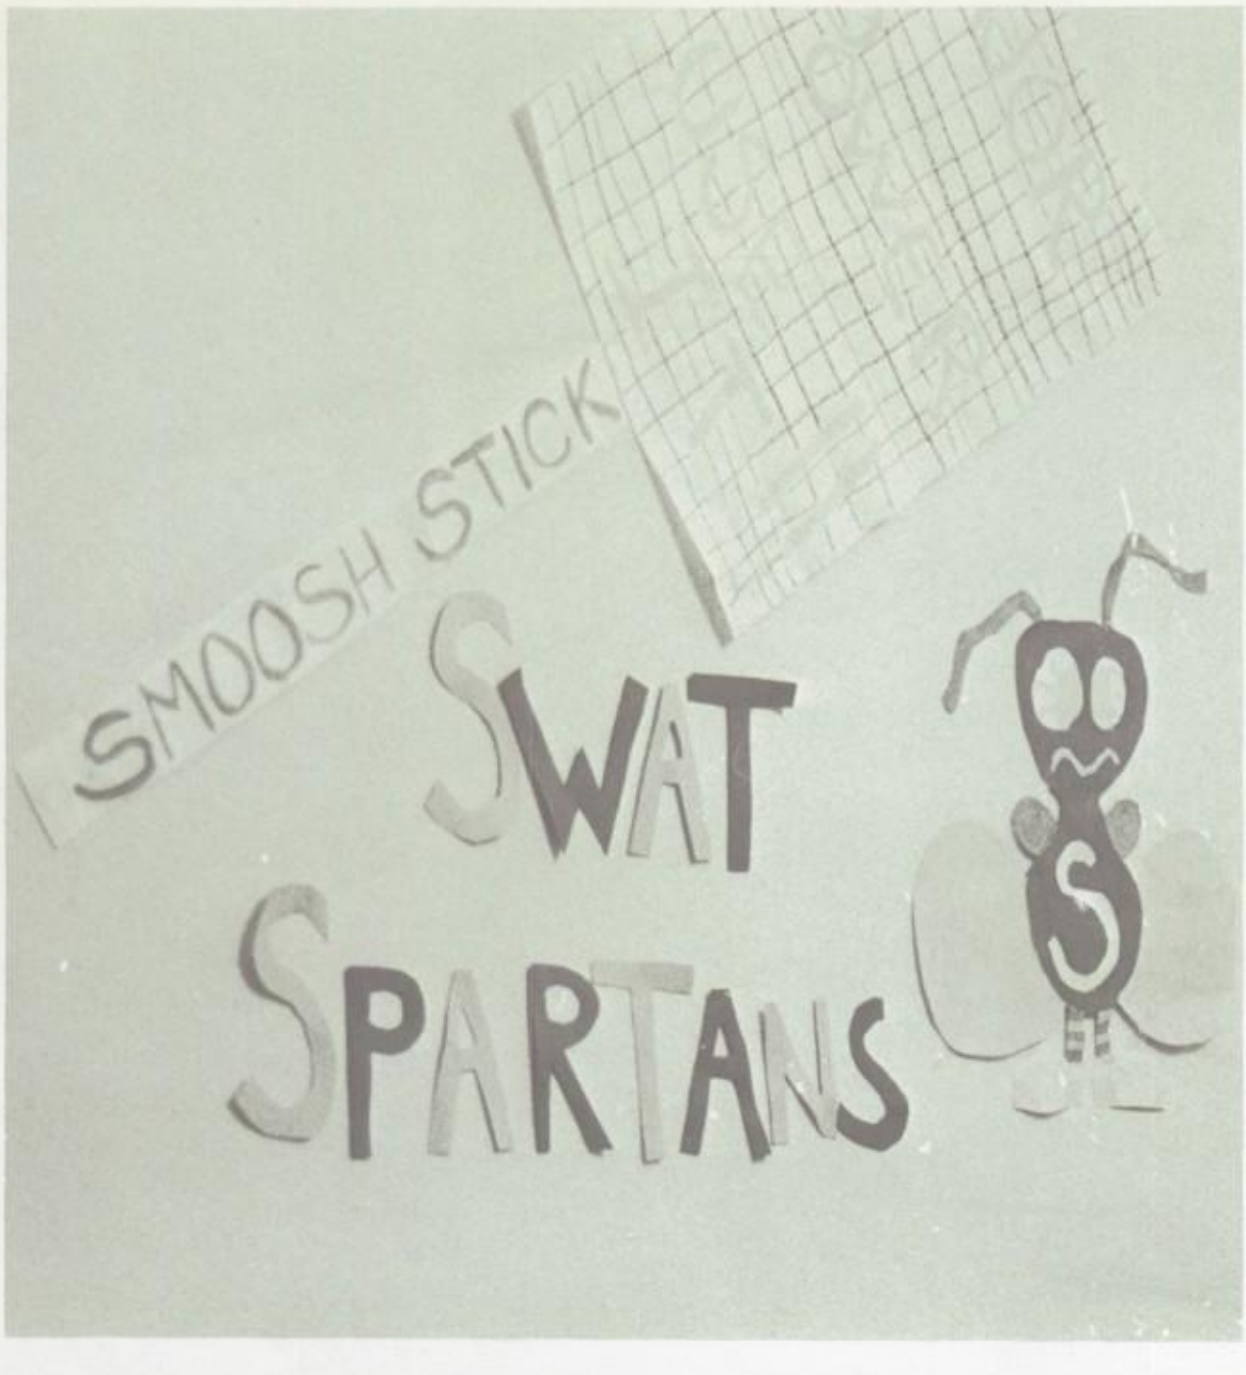
Fall means the beginning of school, meeting teachers for the first time, seeing old friends, and making new ones. After school has started, most activities relate to football, since it is the major happening of the season. A large portion of the student body participates in these activities by becoming involved in either the Football Team itself, Drill Team, Majorettes, Color Guard, Cheerleading, or, as the majority are, as spectators. Entwined with this involvement is competition and spirit. In competing with other schools, the student body urges the team to win in the form of pep rallies, cheering, and decorating lockers.



Mr. Landes, under the name of a foreign conductor, gives a surprise performance in conducting the band. A symbol of Fall . . . a barren tree. Steve Curtis receives the Most Valuable Defensive Player Award at the Fall Awards Assembly. The locker decoration gives a suggestion on how to beat the Spartans. Inanimate objects become symbols of spirit in the hands of a cheerleader.

New queen crowned for '71-'72 reign

HOMECOMING

Mother Nature postponed the rain for a few hours so Mount Vernon students and alumni could enjoy the half time activities of Homecoming 1971. After a long week of preparation and surging spirit, students waited in suspense as former queen Barbara Fitzpatrick relinquished her crown to . . . Ginna Ghent.

This time, classes did not hold float competition, instead, following the "All Is Love" theme, they worked together to build a single float. Mount Vernon's traditional Homecoming Dance, which was held in the gym, featured the music of Boxcar and Stark Naked. For the last time, the queen and her court reigned as the memories of Homecoming 1971 drew to a close.

One of the most unusual programs that Mount Vernon has had was the Previews of Progress assembly, in which Charles Jones demonstrated new scientific experiments, products, and machines. Students were thoroughly enthralled by the demonstration which was both informative and entertaining.

American Showcase gave an hour long performance of a mixture of rock music and some comedy skits.

The popular band Crank was hired by the Thespian Society for an after school concert. The concert was open not only to Mount Vernon students, but also to students of other area schools. So many people attended that the crowd overflowed outside.

Another evening concert was given by the Airmen of Note, the Official Jazz Ensemble of the United States Airforce, who were on "A Musical Tour of the Beltway". The group played both popular and classical music. Perhaps the piece that was most enjoyed was "Madison Avenue Suite". It was a salute to commercial television and everyone was entertained trying to identify the commercial tunes.

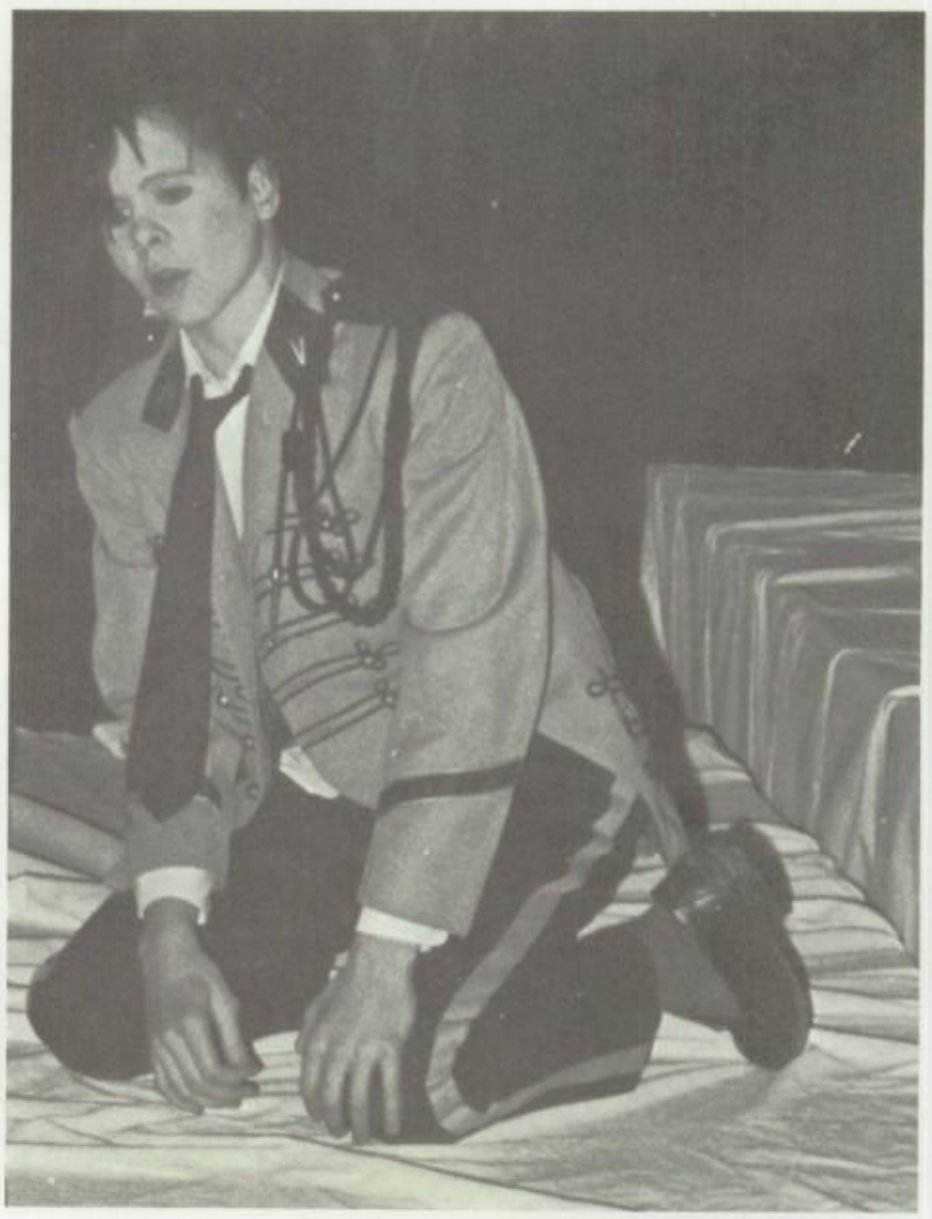
Crank entertains students at the concert. The Airmen of Note tune up in preparation for their performance. A bit of humor is added when Mr. Snell, Tyler Fadely, and Sarah Shutt are asked by a member of the American Showcase about their hobby — kissing. Charles Jones proves that even an egg will not break when bounced on a new type of foam rubber.

Comedy and Tragedy

DRAMATIC PRODUCTIONS

The first of the two plays presented by the Drama Department was See How They Run, by Phillip King, a delightful comedy about an unusual day at a vicarage in Morton-Cum-Middlewick. It included a busybody, something every small town has, plus some other interesting characters. The play stressed the fact that people sometimes judge others too quickly without discovering all the facts and, as a result, get the wrong impression.

Antigone, by Jean Anouilh, was the second performance. In contrast to the comedy See How They Run, it was a Greek tragedy. The play resolved that living was worse than dying.



Conflicts between God and the state come out in an argument between Kevin Welch and Leigh Henry. Liz Chester knits quietly as the Drama Department's city of Thebes crumbles about her. Mark Scandling, weary from his run, tells of the execution of Antigone. Jane Rehme, Richard Allred, and Leigh Henry act out a scene in See How They Run. In her spirited, youthful way, Ellie Johnson prepares tea. Even with the inspector on the scene, no one can agree on who is the real vicar.

Students take Winter in stride

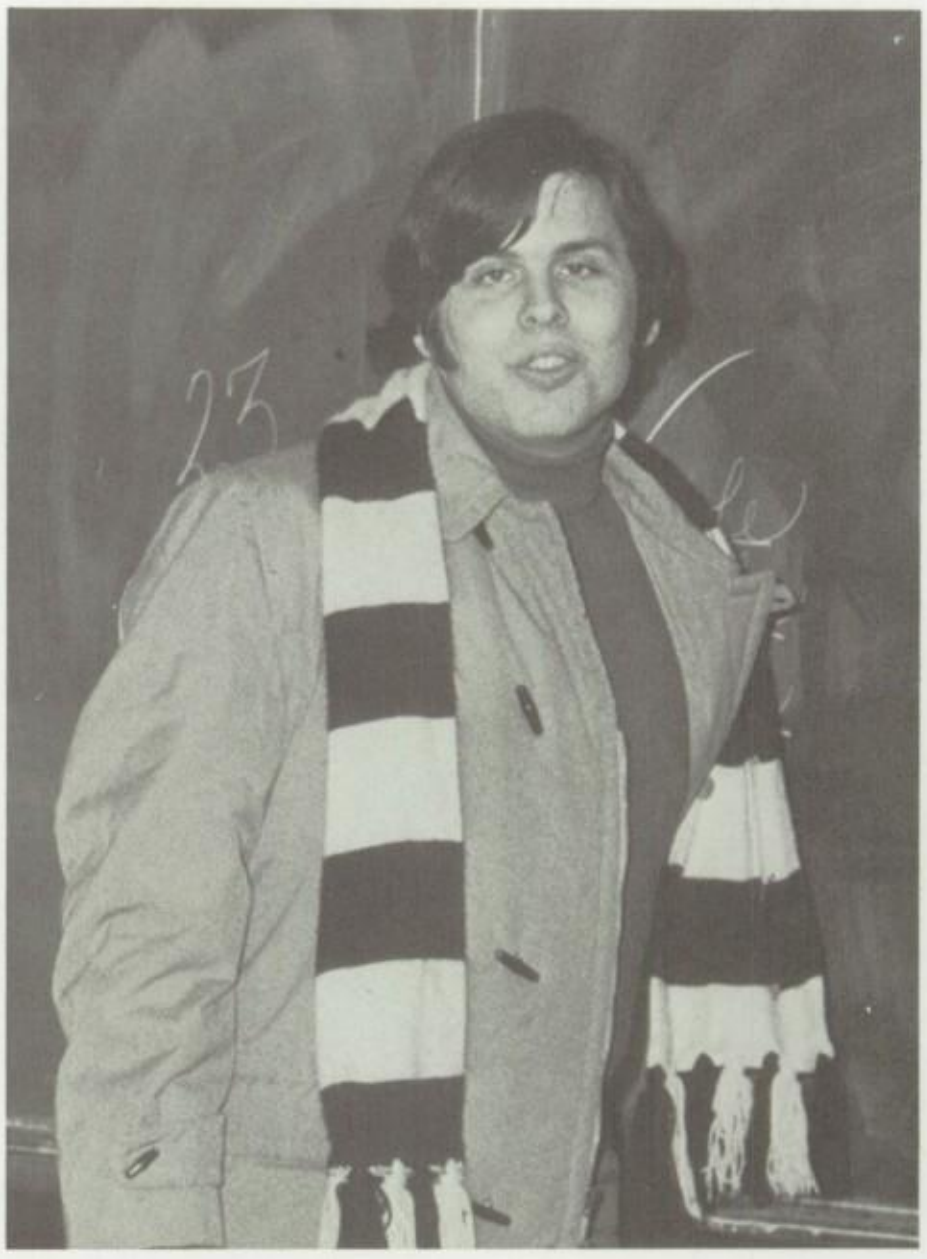
A lull seems to settle on Mount Vernon during the winter months. The annual Christmas Concert and perhaps an occasional play are the only usual programs. Before Christmas, students are busy shopping for presents, and when the new year begins, they either settle into the winter doldrums or try to fight against them and begin the year optimistically.

During the Christmas Concert, the Madrigals harmonize in "Fruitcake". Barbie Sullivan steps off the bus bundled up against a cold, gray day. Dressed as Santa Claus, Bob King, takes a break to look over the wares at the Keyette Christmas Bazaar. David Williams and Cliff Roop wander around the school wishing all a merry Christmas.

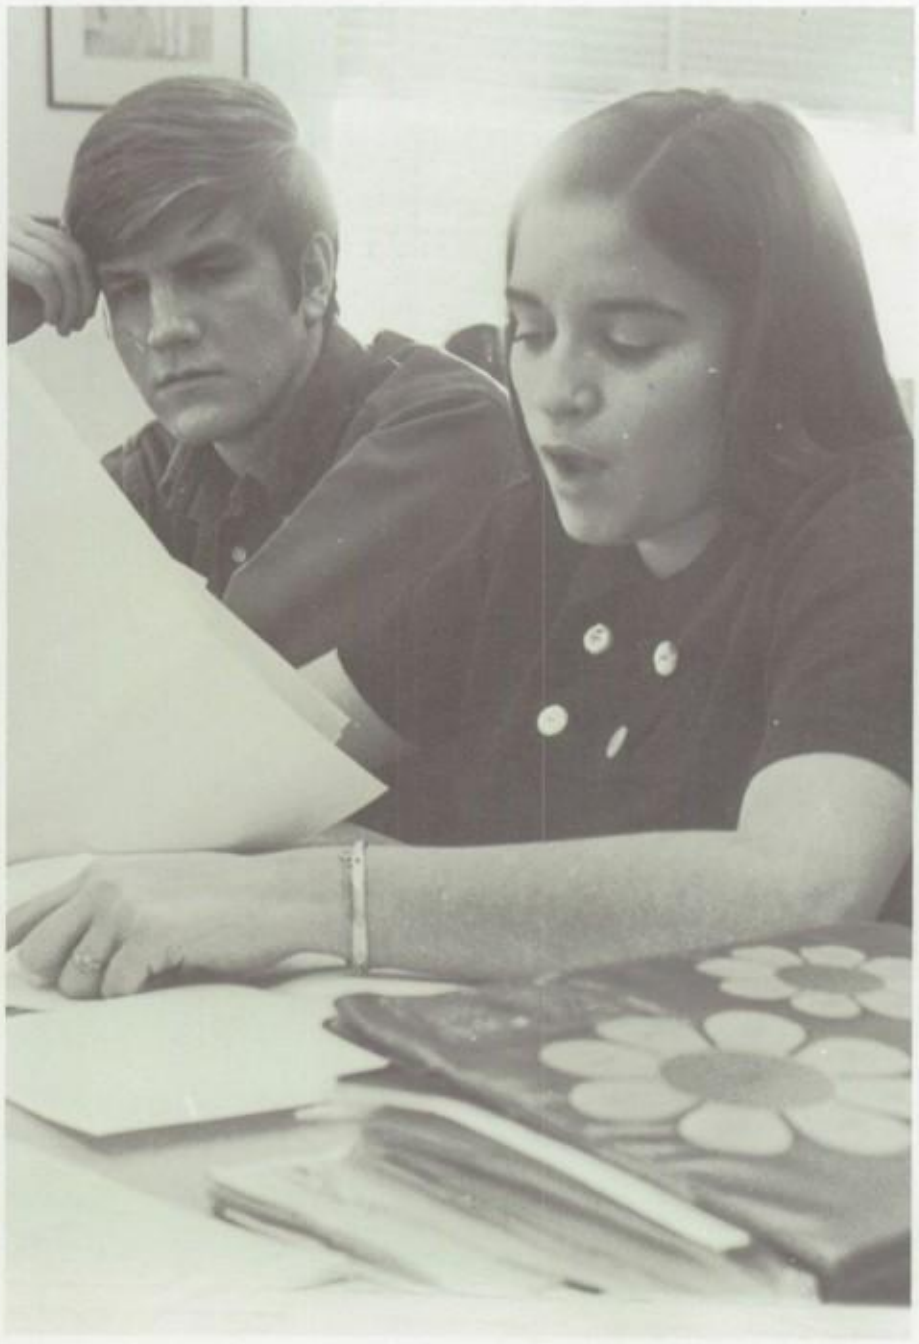
It's the faces that are remembered



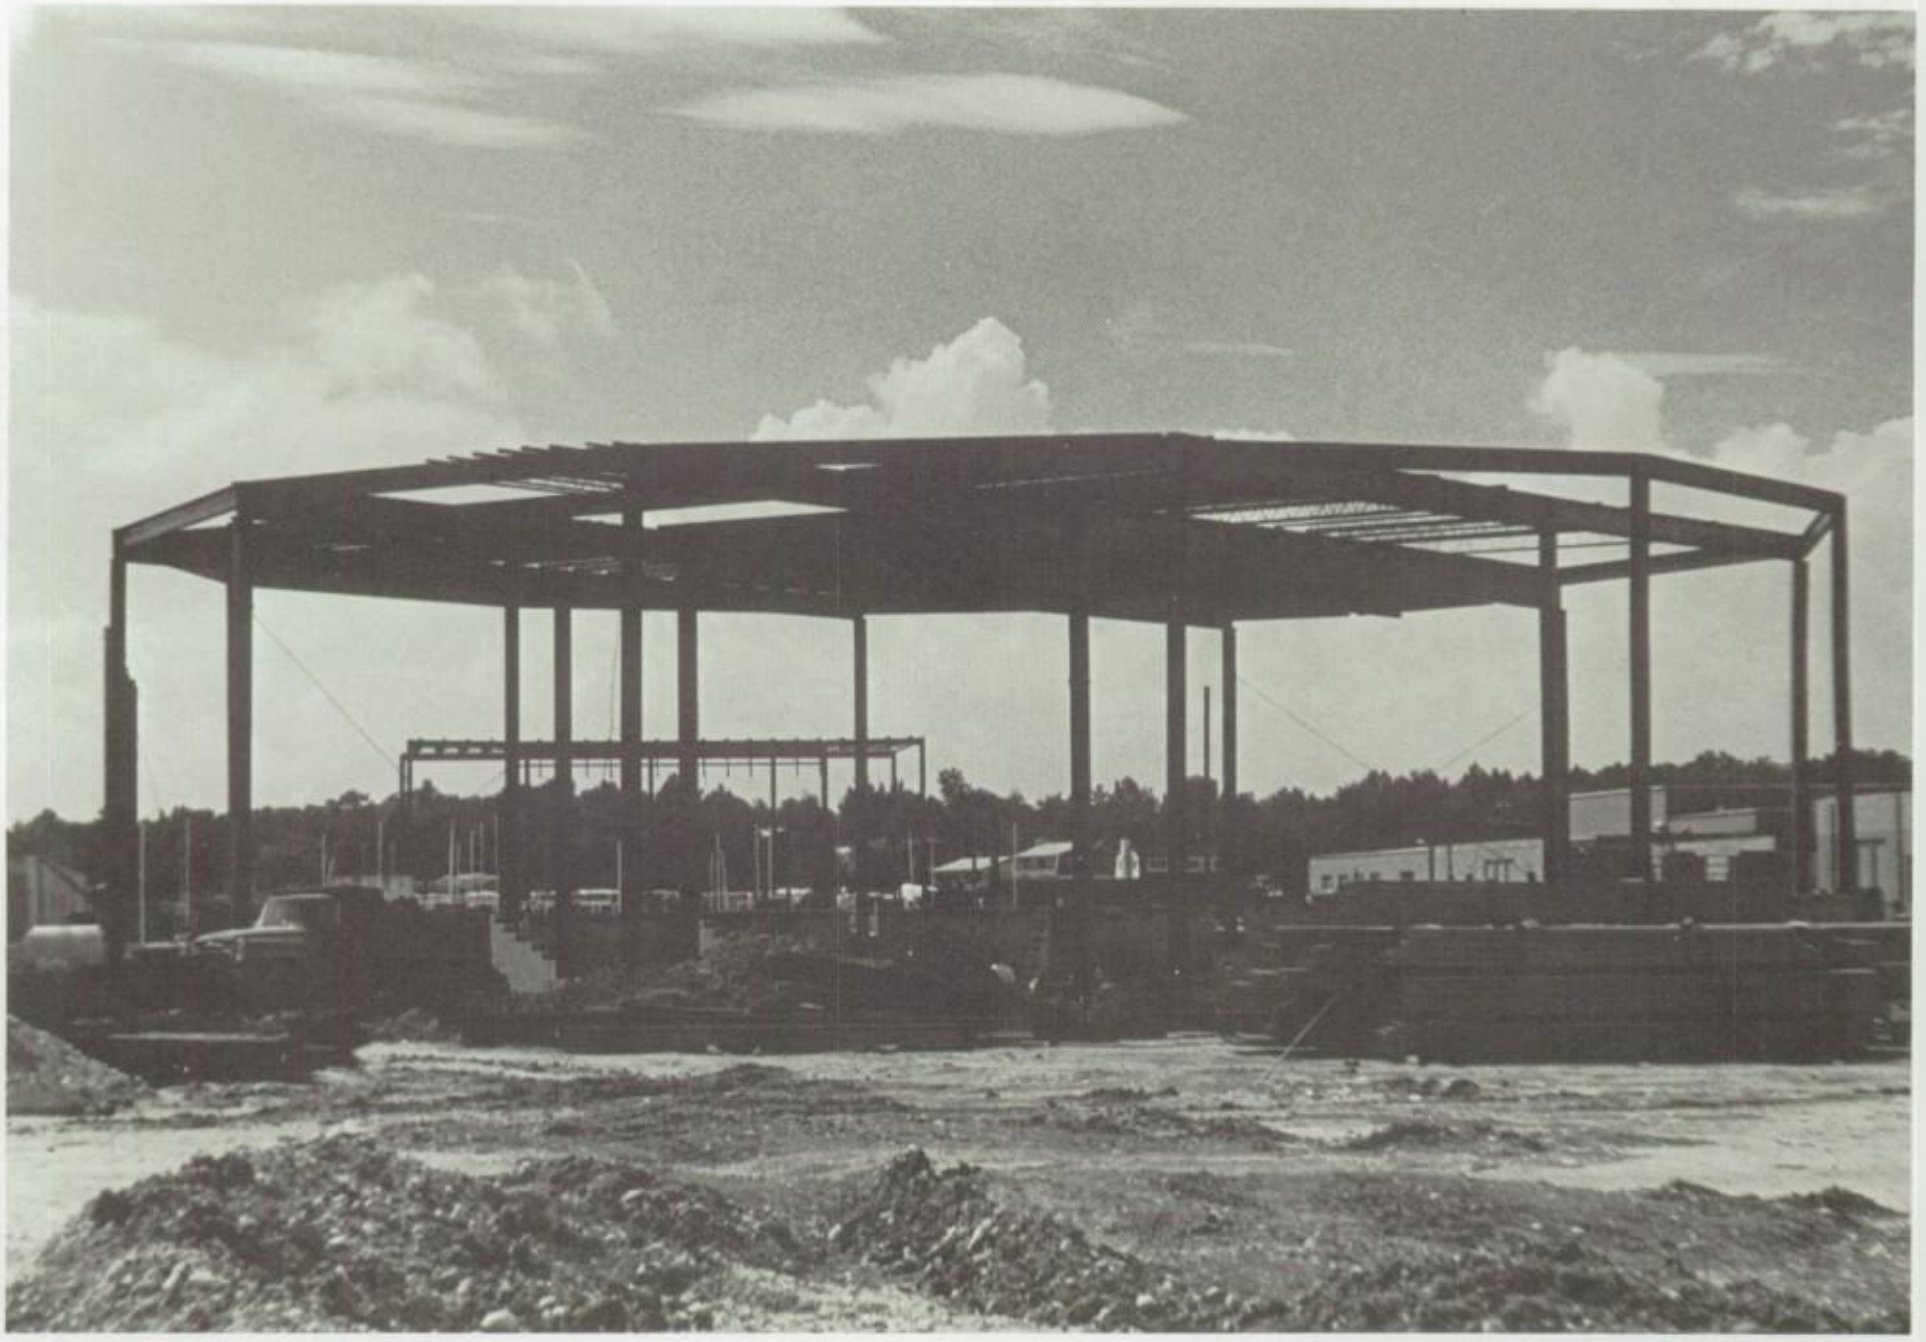
FACES

Faces, like pictures, are worth a thousand words. They are a means by which we communicate our feelings to others. A smile, a frown, a laugh, a cry, a yawn — all are expressions by which others perceive whether we are happy, sad, bored, or tired. In years to come we may not be able to remember names but we will always remember faces.

Student teaching is a process of learning which Mr. Hymen explores in teaching French. Mary Rice shares an amusing part of her work with Clay Mulford.



The frustration of getting a stapler to work can be seen in the face of Sherry Kernan. Dee Aranza patiently explains a problem to Al Myers. Being different, Kelli Mallon chews on a spoon.



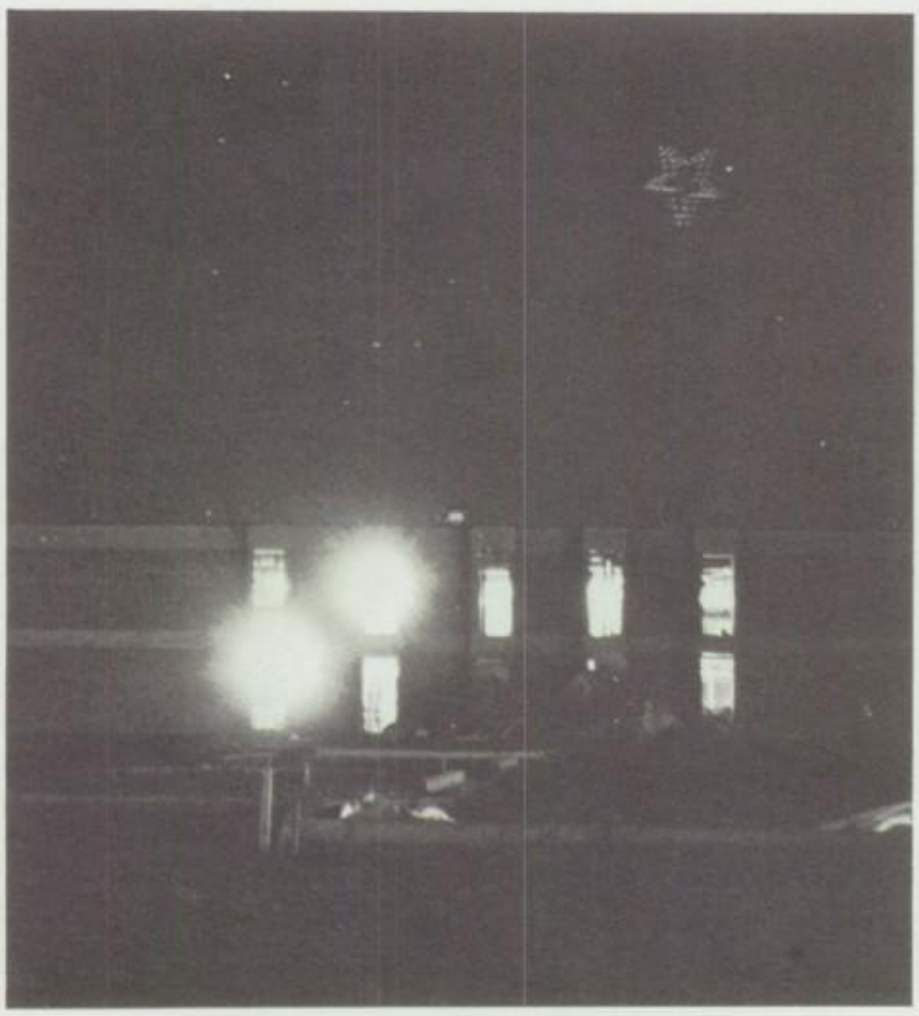
A reality on the horizon

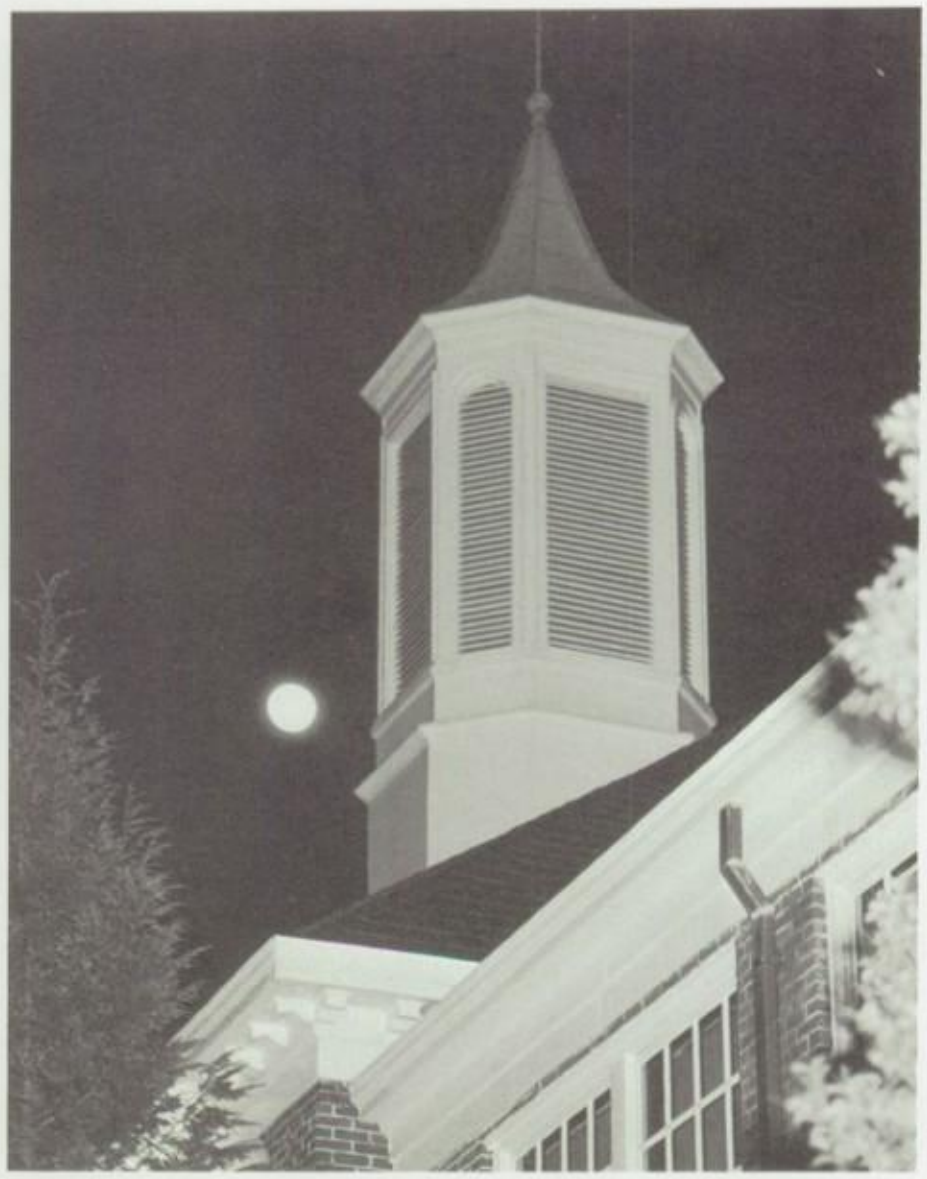
MOUNT VERNON

The future Mount Vernon High School has risen from the flattened landscape of Walt Whitman. The new school is now a reality on the horizon. Although it is not to be completed until 1974, there is a possibility of it opening sooner.

Underclassmen look forward to the new school, but graduates of this year and next are filled with a feeling of remorse because it will not be the building that they hold memories of.

The empty hall will soon become full of life as the halls of Mount Vernon are now. The skeleton of the theater-in-the-round stands out because of its oddity. Little by little the future Mount Vernon begins to develop. A lighted star, placed on the construction, seems to portray hope for the building. The night picture of the present Mount Vernon symbolizes the end of a life it has known for many years.





Organizations

To get two people to agree on any one subject is a formidable accomplishment; to get a large group of people to agree is a miracle, but that is the goal of an organization. While striving to pull people with a common interest into a harmonious relationship, a club discovers the more frustrating aspects of human nature. Disputes on projects and activities arise despite the efforts of the leaders and yet, in the end, they often manage a compromise. Perhaps this first major encounter with the difficulties of understanding even between people who share an interest is the best way to learn what each person faces as he endeavors to deal with his environment.

Officers dedicate themselves to the new school

SCA OFFICERS

Anticipating the move to the new high school, the new slate of officers set out to make the SCA a more vital part of school life. They strove to attain a working system between the student body and the administration. The District Supervisor plan was devised and brought into existence for the purpose of attaining better understanding through communication. By setting their goals and attempting to achieve them, the SCA became a more intregal part of our school.

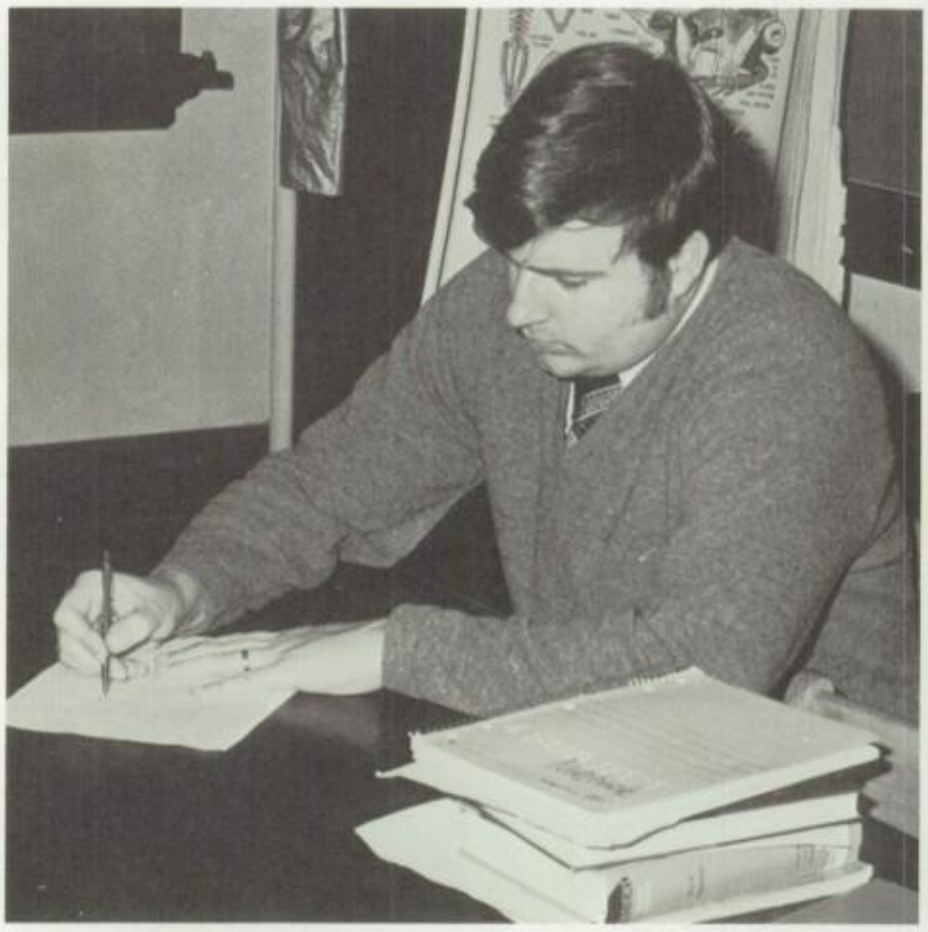
STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

Under the new president, George Bernard, the SCA initiated a new plan. The theory behind the plan was the division of the school into 9 districts. The representatives of the individual districts then elected a supervisor from their district, who met directly with the officers. The supervisor meetings were open and those interested could attend. A Board of Human Relations was set up by the supervisors to channel any complaints students and teachers had concerning the curriculum or environment.



As sponsor of the SCA, Mr. Givens helps with the paperwork.

KEY CLUB

Throughout the world, the young seem to strive to help their fellow man. An organization of men created for this purpose exists in Mount Vernon. It is known as the MVHS Key Club under the leadership of Mike Strack. This year was a busy one with the painting of the press box, and cataloguing textbooks and preparing them for issue to students. Outside of school, members helped to sell over 1000 Christmas trees with the Mount Vernon Kiwanis Club. They also renovated the UCM coffeehouse, constructing a stage and several room dividers. Club members also had time for fun with two holiday season parties with their counterparts, the Keyettes. Hosting parties for retarded and crippled children brought fun but also a meaningful experience to those who participated.

KEYETTES

Another organization dedicated to helping others is the Mount Vernon Keyettes. The girls started early by helping with the Head Start Program. With the beginning of school, they put up bulletin boards, helped the administration with registration and gave a breakfast for the faculty. Later in the year, Keyettes served as usherettes when the choral concerts came. But singing is not restricted to the choruses as the girls sang at the D.C. Village. With all their activities, the members still had time for the Keyette-Key Club parties and the district meetings and activities. All in all, the girls were kept busy throughout the year serving others.

SENIOR HONOR SOCIETY

The Senior Honor Society — an organization of students of various backgrounds who maintain high academic standing is more than just a name. JUNIOR HONOR SOCIETY

With the upperclassmen involved in the Senior Honor Society, the intellectual underclassmen have found themselves in the Junior Honor Society. The procedure for membership was changed this year so as to encourage those interested students with the 3.5 average to join. One had to fill out an application and submit it to the society. Upon the announcement of new inductees, a candlelight ceremony including a recitation of the pledge and the signing of the scroll gave a feeling of impressiveness to the new members and their parents.

FRENCH HONOR SOCIETY

To take French is not the only requirement to become a member of the French Honor Society. One must be interested in the culture, maintain a high average, and be willing to help those who have difficulties with it. The highlight of the year is the induction ceremony followed by a dinner of French Cuisine.

GERMAN CLUB AND GERMAN HONOR SOCIETY

With the start of the new year, the German Club celebrated the Oktoberfest. A traditional custom, the Oktoberfest is observed in Germany in honor of the new harvest. As a Christmas project, the members decorated the German rooms. Trips were planned to the German Embassy and a restaurant. Their major project was a possible trip to the Pennsylvania-Dutch country.

The German Honor Society, in its second year of existence, became an organization in name only. Its presence was to give recognition to those proficient in the language and one who stood out was Bill Lieto, the only fifth year student.

Preparing the punch at the Oktoberfest is that little German girl, Kathy MacLean.

FRENCH CLUB

Students, fascinated by the language and culture, joined together in the French Club. This year the club spent the majority of time planning for a bicycle race. The race was modeled after the French "La Tour de France" and called appropriately, "La Tour de Mount Vernon." To raise money for other activities, the members not only had routine bakesales, but they also sold handcrafted candles made by the mentally retarded. The high sellers of the sale were Mrs. Avoli, Chuck Johnston, and Martin Willis. Although much time was spent in money making, the club found time to visit a French Restaurant.

SPANISH CLUB

With the largest membership for one club in the school, one would expect complete chaos. Yet, every year, the officers of the Spanish Club manage to bring off several activities without a hitch. SCIENCE CLUB

Under the leadership of Clifford Snyder, the Science Club widened its horizons. Members found themselves on many different and interesting field trips to places such as the Agriculture Research Center, Goddard Space Center, and the Washington Coast Guard Radio Center. At the meetings, the president arranged for students to demonstrate and explain their hobbies. Among the various hobbies shown were a magic show with chemistry and rocket launches. A paper airplane contest was planned for the spring. The Science Club finished the year with a planned trip to Cape Kennedy to witness the April Launch.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS

With their club theme, "Make Time Work for You," the Future Homemakers began their plans. Trips to Virginia's colleges were discussed and planned as was the Future Homemakers Week. The club sponsored a speaker from Montgomery Wards to speak to all students interested in make-up — an art no girl can do without. To end the year the club helped the Future Teachers in the planning and staging of the Mount Vernon Beauty Contest.

FUTURE TEACHERS

With a membership including three boys, this year's FTA got off to a good start. At the beginning of school, they welcomed the new faculty members with apples. Soon after, they ushered at Back-to-School Night, making sure the parents found the right classroom and teacher. Members also tutored at Woodley Hills, receiving a preview of their chosen field.

Along with their work, three members attended the Future Teachers Convention in Richmond and the whole club went to Mary Washington and Madison for a look-see. A new member party was held in December, along with a Faculty Tea. As a major project, the club sponsored a Be Kind to Teacher Week reminding students that an apple may be old fashion but it still works like a charm.

SENIOR SECRETARIES AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING PROGRAM

A look into the business world could be viewed if one attended the Steno 2 class. An efficient office type atmosphere is observed as typewriters and adding machines, manned by the Senior Secretaries whirl into action. To prepare for jobs after graduation, speakers were brought in to discuss pertinent subjects. For those students already working, vocational office training was offered.

MATH TEAM

The doors of the cafeteria closed, the chattering subsided. Student mathematicians representing five different schools, awaited the signal to begin computing the math answers. This was one of the league school meets which the MV Math team was proud to host during the 71-72 season. The average points won by a team are usually six out of thirty. Our team came through with a nineteen out of thirty proving the mathematical abilities of the team.

SKI CLUB

Giving the students a chance to break a leg or an arm, the ski club provided transportation and chaperones for those interested in skiing. The trips were open to all, with the only requirement being the love for the sport. The favorite haunts of the skiers were Roundtop and Seven Springs in Pennsylvania.

"It's easier this way," states Mike Laney.

WORK PROGRAMS

Learning is not limited to classroom studies alone as the DE and VICA students found out. Attending school in the morning and working in the afternoon enabled them to sample several types of learning situations. This on-the-job training provided an interesting wage earning experience which will aid them following graduation.

SWIM CLUB

Practicing at 6:30 on Saturday mornings, the Swim Club's early risers proved to be Gunston District champions. Their efforts did not end there as they petitioned the school and parents to become a recognized sport. The petitioning of the club resulted in their becoming a minor varsity sport. To raise money for awards, they sold nut wreaths, stationery, and held the original donut sale. At the Awards Assembly, the Most Valuable Swimmer was presented to Gary Jones and Mindy Kelln.

DEBATE TEAM

Looking for a winning team? The MV Debate team boasts a winning season. Competing nearly every weekend in tournaments and scrimages as far away as Massachusetts, New York, Georgia and Pennsylvania, the seven teams took awards and trophies at each one. During the Gunston District season, in a debate against Groveton and Lee, the seven MV teams won all fourteen awards, a feat almost unheard of. The varsity affirmative team, Sherry Kernan and Mary Simpkins, were enthusiastic about debating at the National tournament of the NCFL after qualifying in the championship division of their district. Aside from achieving honor and distinction for MV the debators helped the school by publishing the Student Directory.

Newspaper staff heads for New York

EM VE HI

Amid the hussle and bussle, the newspaper staff strove to meet each deadline. Mrs. Keppel, the new sponsor advocated independence giving guidance only when deemed necessary; therefore, the paper was student run. In order to learn about printing a better publication, eighteen members of the staff met with students from all over the country at a workshop held in New York. The convention, sponsored by Columbia Scholastic Press Association, lasted for three days. In lieu of the traditional Twirp Week festivities sponsored by the staff, a Leap Day Celebration was held complete with class competition basketball games played on school time. The newspaper set out to please all the students. Equal emphasis was placed on all the classes. Creativity was accented as many literary works of students were incorporated in each issue. Through an editorial written by Renee Frizzell, "Old Glory" flies atop a new sturdy flagpole.

SURVEYOR

In a small, windowless room, the staff of the SURVEYOR dilligently worked to create a book of memories for the school. No one will ever know the trauma of publishing a yearbook. There was the joy in discovering a "great" picture and finding out that it didn't fit on the page; the blanking of the mind while writing copy and finally the relief at each deadline were all part of the makings of this year's book. Meanwhile, in another, smaller room worked the photographers. These tempermental artists took the visual records and spent hours in the dark developing them for the staff. Finally, there was Mr. "T", the sponsor, and the editors who made a working, organized staff out of a conglomeration of talents.

Self expression sought through creativity

ART CLUB AND LITERARY MAGAZINE

"Send your love a rock to remember you by" was one of the slogans of the rock sale, sponsored by the Art Club. Rocks of all shapes and sizes could be bought in any design one desired. At the meetings, members experimented with different aspects of art, including macreme and copper enameling. The final activities included trips to the Washington Art Galleries.

Mount Vernon, in the 1970's, experienced an awakening to the arts. Students were writing literary works and going unnoticed. To display the creative talents to the school, a group of students banded together to publish a literary magazine. They accepted any and all contributions of prose, poetry, and short stories, all of which were edited by the members. Along with the literature; art sketches in ink, charcoal, and pencil had to be decided upon. Although there were many problems with the "first year publication," the group and Mrs. Keppel, the sponsor, were optimistic about the future of the magazine.

The Color Guard marches onto the field.

COLOR GUARD

Guns poised, flags unfurled, a group of girls in marching formation enter onto the field.

The Color Guard of Mount Vernon, though often times overlooked, carries the great responsibility for the welfare of not only the American Flag, but also the state and county flags. Besides the opening routines for the football games, the girls marched during halftime for Homecoming and Band Night. The need for new uniforms promoted many fundraising activities, such as carwashes and bakesales, keeping the girls busy throughout the year.

MAJORETTES

As the band begins to play, silver costumes glitter against the backdrop of night. The glowing light at the ends of the batons flame to life as they are twirled by the Mount Vernon Majorettes. These girls put forth an effort not only as a team, but also as individuals. On Halloween night, the girls had an opportunity to display their talents as members specialized with the hoop, flag, two batons, and strut. With the end of football came basketball, and the twirlers came onto the court with their silver sticks. For the first time in three years, they performed for the crowds at a home game. Following that, the girls went to Lee High School and twirled along with the Lancer majorettes. With the approach of spring, the girls sought to improve their talent for the State Twirling Competition in May. Busy as the girls were with new routines and uniforms, the underlying goal throughout the year was to attain more unity between the Band, Drill Team, and Majorettes.

CHEERLEADERS

". . . Majors, Majors are Great, Great . . ." yell the girls and the frenzied crowd echoes back the words. Instilling the excitement of the game to the fans and the will to win to the players is the job of the cheerleading squads. Being a year round job, cheerleading gave the girls the opportunity to go to camp, thereby brushing up on skills and learning new cheers. Back at school new ideas for decorating the hall and locker room were designed. Pep rallies showed the school spirit as classes competed for the Pep Jug. The never ending energy of these girls made them a vital part of school spirit.

DRILL TEAM

With a toot of the whistle, the girls in line march out onto the court, bouncing basketballs . . . basketballs?

For the first time, in the history of Mount Vernon, the Drill Team marched at a basketball game. This was only one of their achievements as they marched in Winchester and the Parade of Champions. The customary jinx dolls were sold and, for fun, they had a Slave Day. But these were extra-curricula and money making activities as the Drill Team marched, traditionally, at the home football games.

BAND

With a $12,000 uniform deficit in their treasury, the bands spent the majority of the time working it off. They started with a napkin sale and continued working during the summer. By January, 1972, they had $700 left to go. But, working for the money didn't hinder them as they played in school concerts and the Parade of Champions. All in all, the band has worked hard and received more recognition than in recent years.

To sing is to live
To listen is to enjoy

CHORUS

The ability to sing entails more than what one believes. Anyone can sing because all it requires is to open one's mouth and let one's vocal chords do the rest. But to have the ability to sing well is to vocalize, harmonize, and to do it all in the same key. Under the direction of Miss Hopkins, our choirs achieve this ability. With their voices, they entertained us at the Fall and Christmas Concert, carrying the audience with their music.

During Sixth period, the choraleers and madrigals harmonize together.

Sports

In addition to individual talent, it is essential that team members possess the ability to work together. With this ability as an asset, the team then has the potential to achieve the goals it sets for itself. Whether the team members aim for a winning record and titles or for the self-satisfaction of doing their best, the possibility of attaining either is enhanced by cooperation. Understanding one another, therefore, becomes an important factor in the development of team spirit. It is through communication that the members of a team can bring about understanding, and ultimately cooperation.

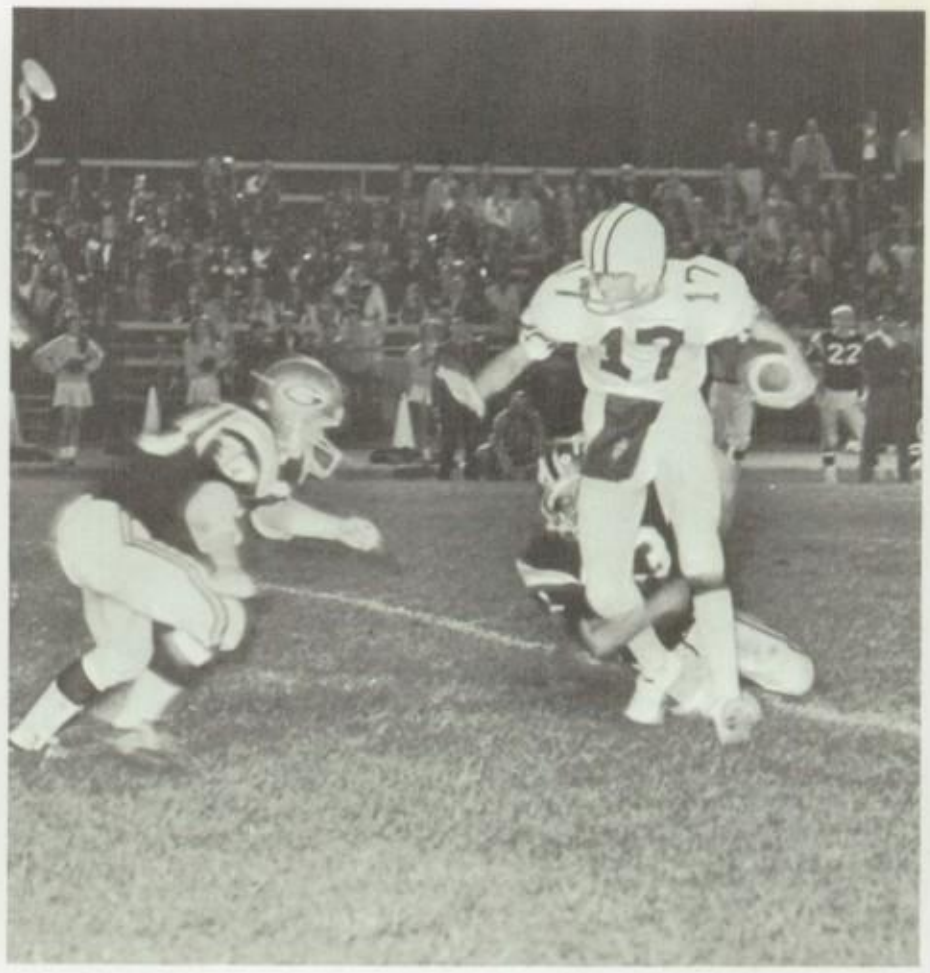
Majors tackle district title

Co-Captain, Doug Wasiak, shows his strength as he motivates the Majors to gain yardage.

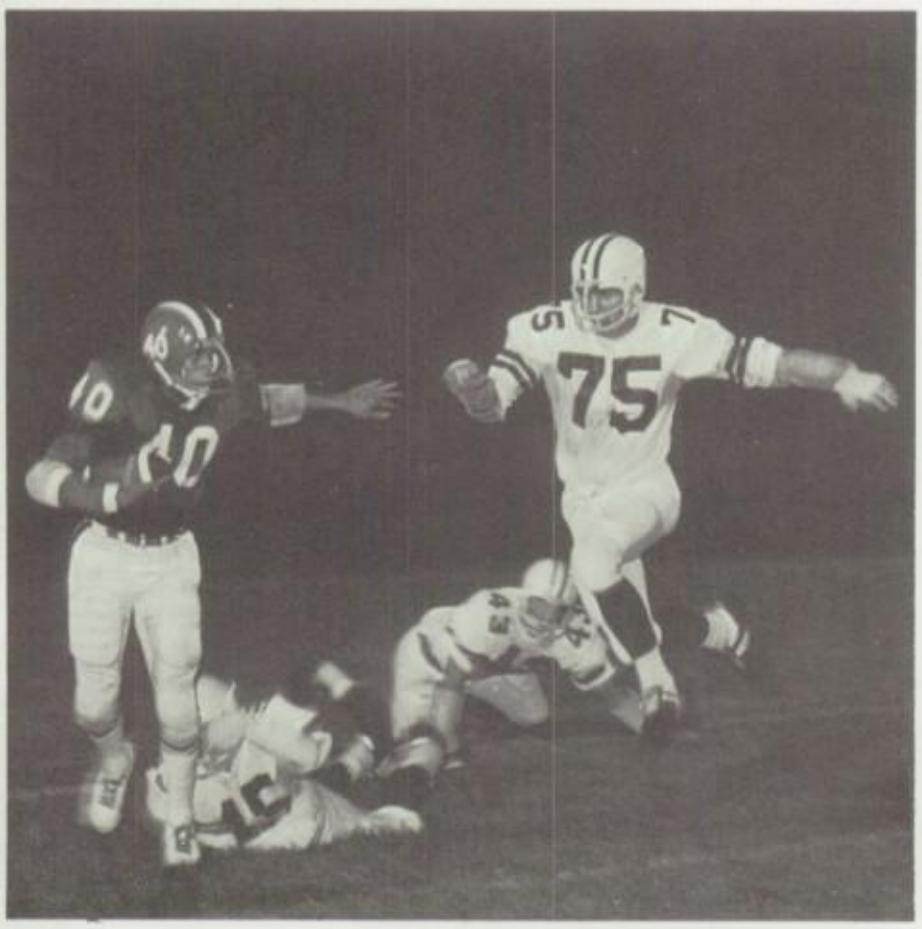


Sure handed Randy Knight readies for a tackle from a defender as he puts his stiff arm to use.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Mount Vernon stadium roared with the voice of victory this year. The Majors led by tri-captains Eric Swanson, Steve Curtis, and Doug Wasiak defeated some of their notorious rivals. In one of the hottest rival games against Fort Hunt, Cliff Roop faked Federals to win the game with a two point conversion. With this win the Majors rose to a triple-tie Gunston District title with a 7-3 record.

Mount Vernon's quarterback, Larry Paap, shows his agility as he sweeps around the end to gain needed yardage.



Fright fills the ball carrier's face as Brian Hodgson closes the gap on his prey.

Rick Townsend takes root to the field to give a sturdy blow to a Groveton ball carrier.

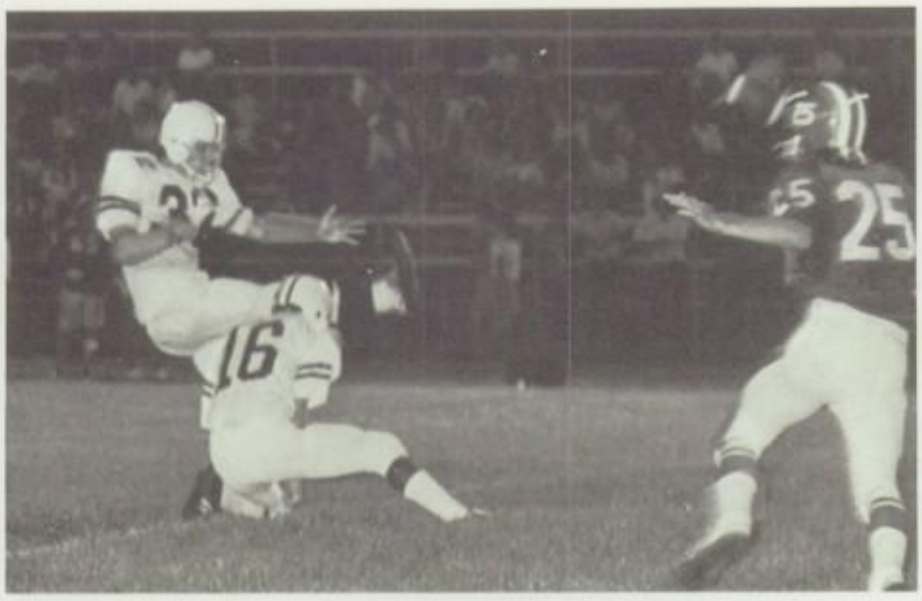
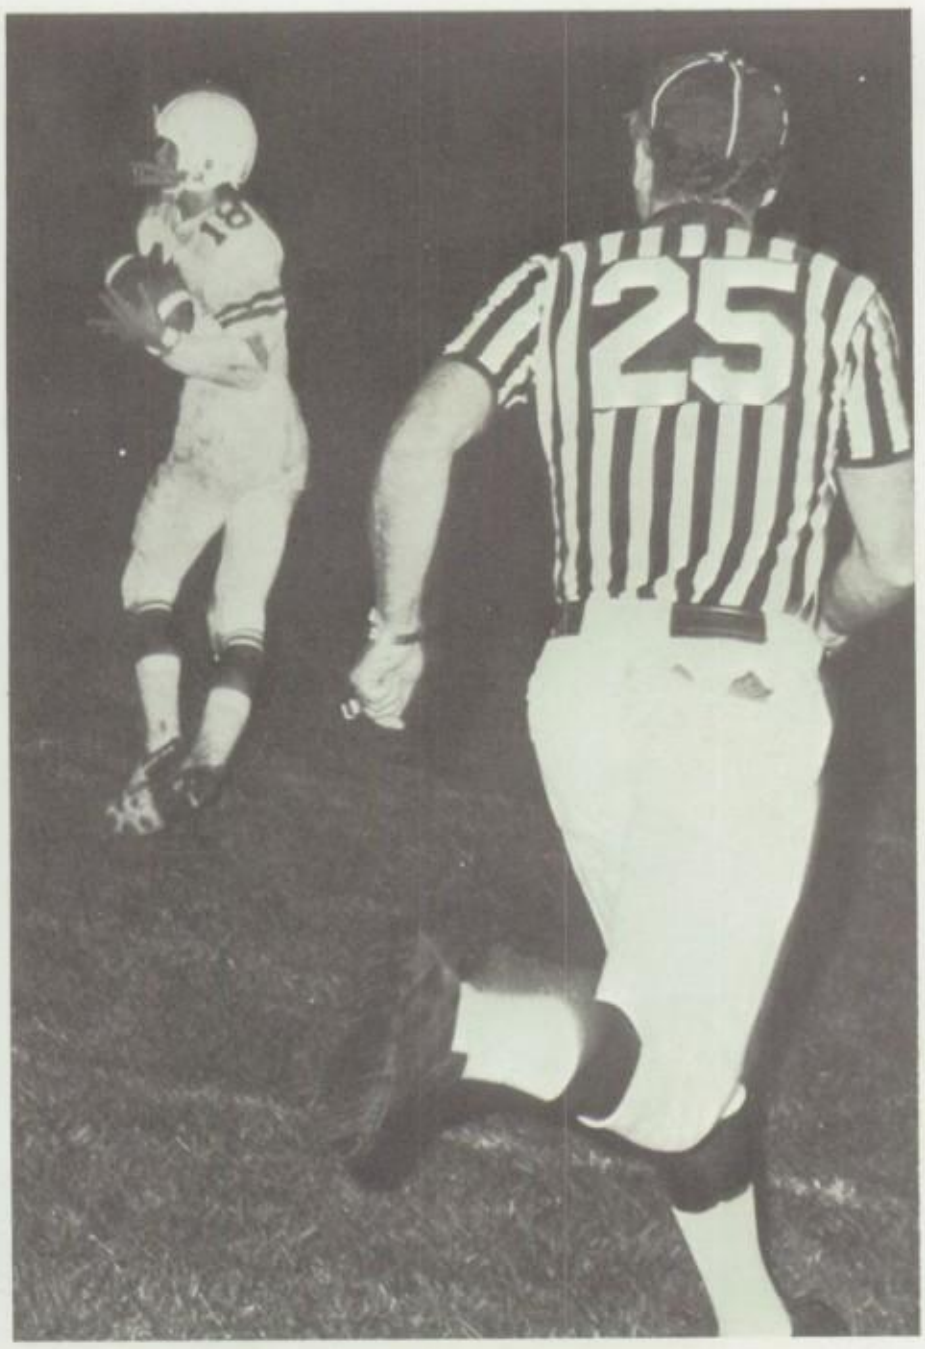
Pass receiving was a necessity to win a district title. Steve Darden, an excellent bullet grabber, and Randy Knight, an excellent bombsnatcher, aided greatly in the Majors final victory over Ft. Hunt.



The successful combination of Suggs and Roop on the coversion team added many vital points to the Major's talley during the season.

Mount Vernon's big defensive three, T. Fadely, D. Vigen, and co-captain S. Curtis, move in to kill a Spartan.



It appears that no defensive man has an eye on Rick Townsend, as he uses his special abilities to get by himself and catch a pass near the goal line.

Pucks push to goal

Mount Vernon's girls gracefully trampled onto the Hockey field this year with the determination to bring the team a winning season. The girl's dedication and skill paid off well. They ended the season with victorious grins on their faces, a 3-4-1 seasonal record.

WINTER TRACK

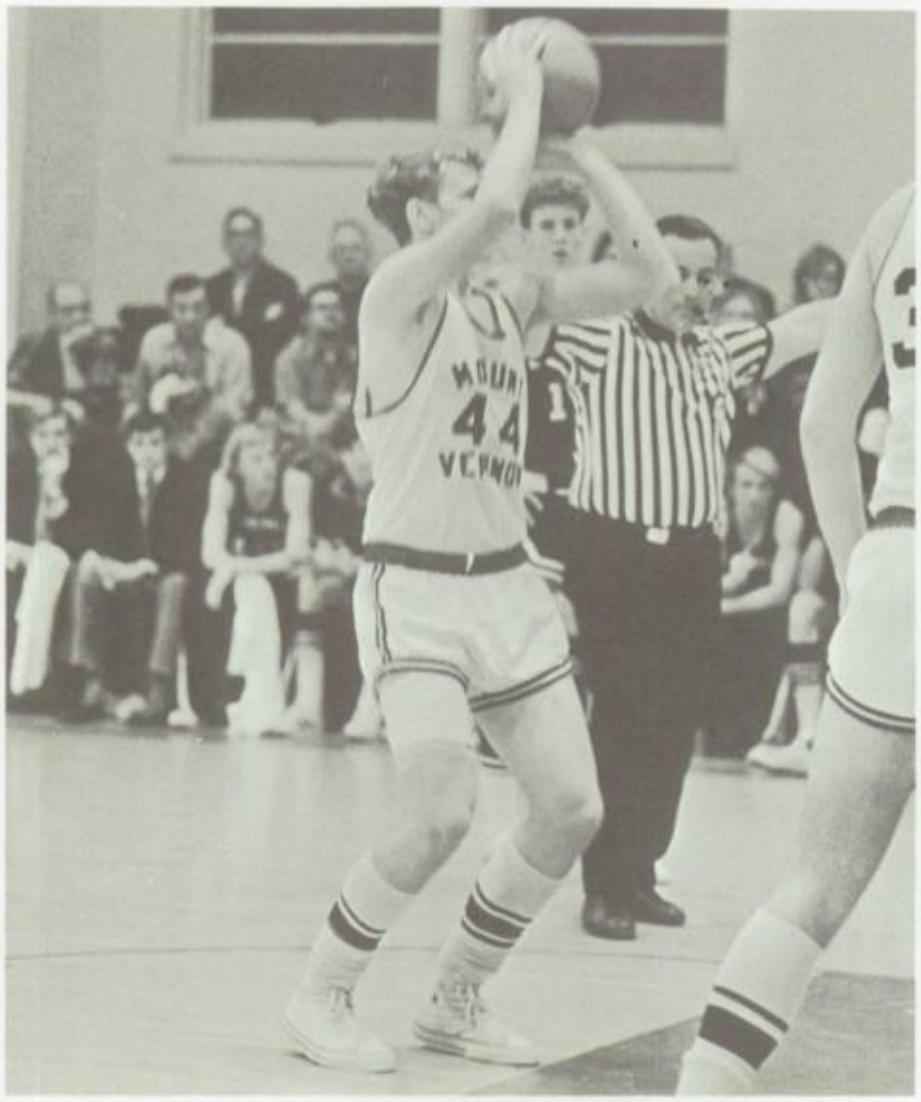
Through the chill of winter the snowmen readied for a stiff season. The practices often carried through the dusky sunsets and into the dark of the early approaching winter nights. Their practices paid off well, producing the outcome of some wins for the season under the direction of Coach Thomas and the leadership of captains, Eric Swanson and Rick Townsend.

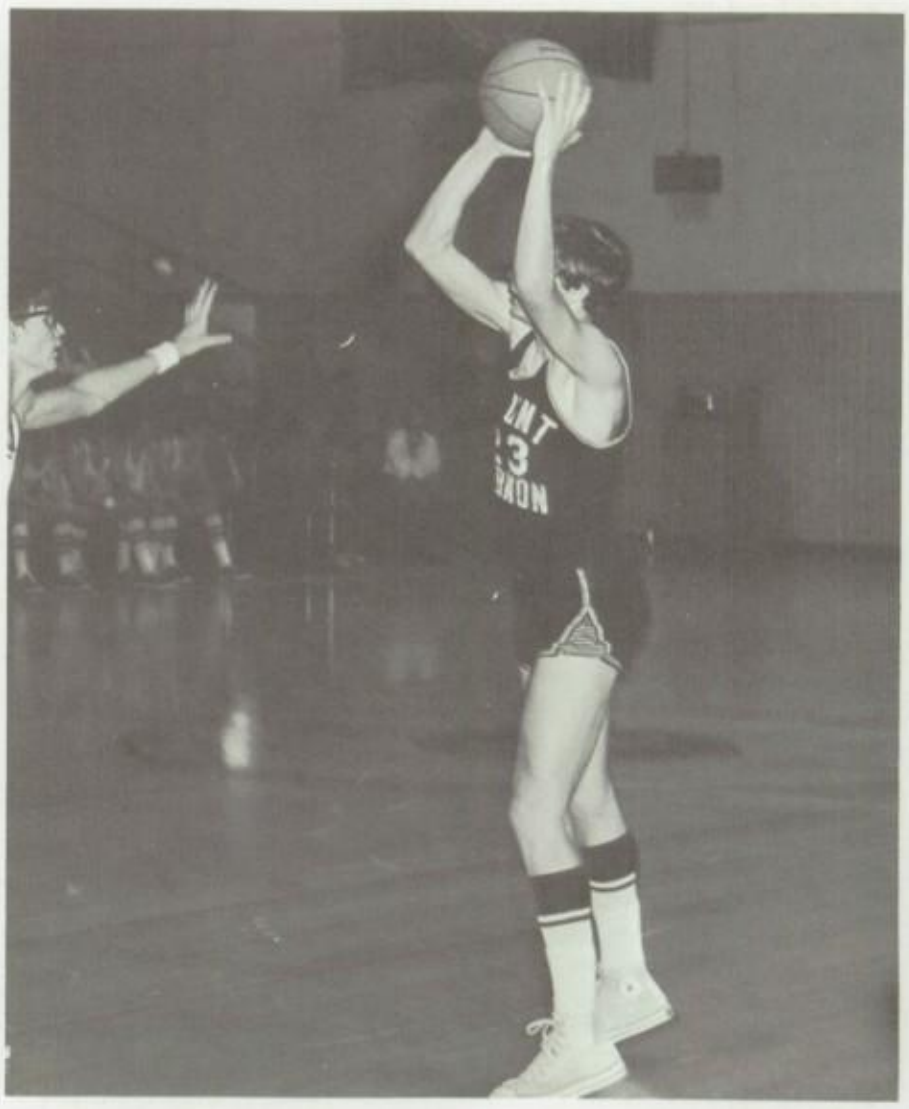
What a way to go

VARSITY BASKETBALL

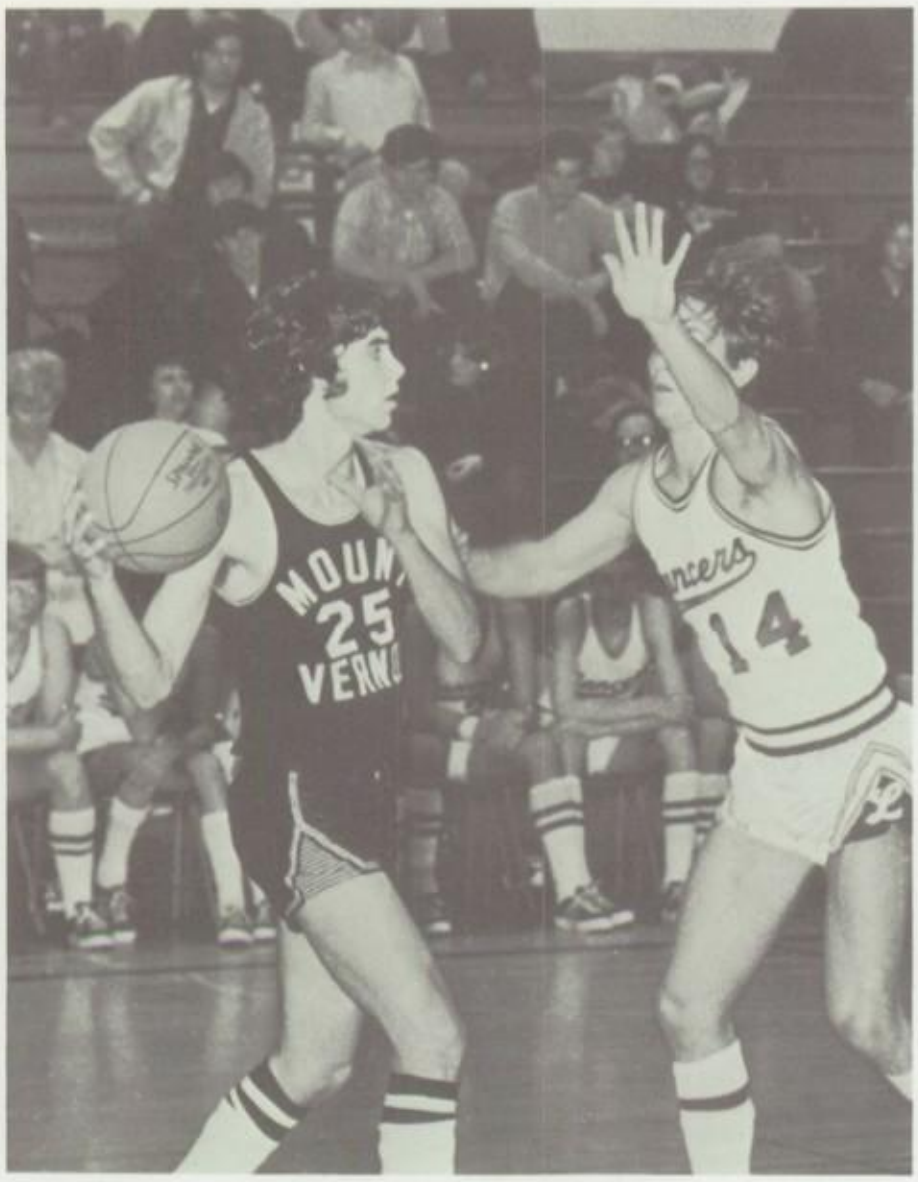
Mount Vernon's "gunners and stuffers" led by captains John Rice and Mike Bannister attracted many spectators this year. Even with the clouds blocking "the sunshine from the halls of M. V. High", the team fought on, never giving up, and should deserve much credit for their optimism throughout the season. Mount Vernon can rest assured that the returning starters Dave Donahoo and Bobo Jordan will make the halls shine bright next year.

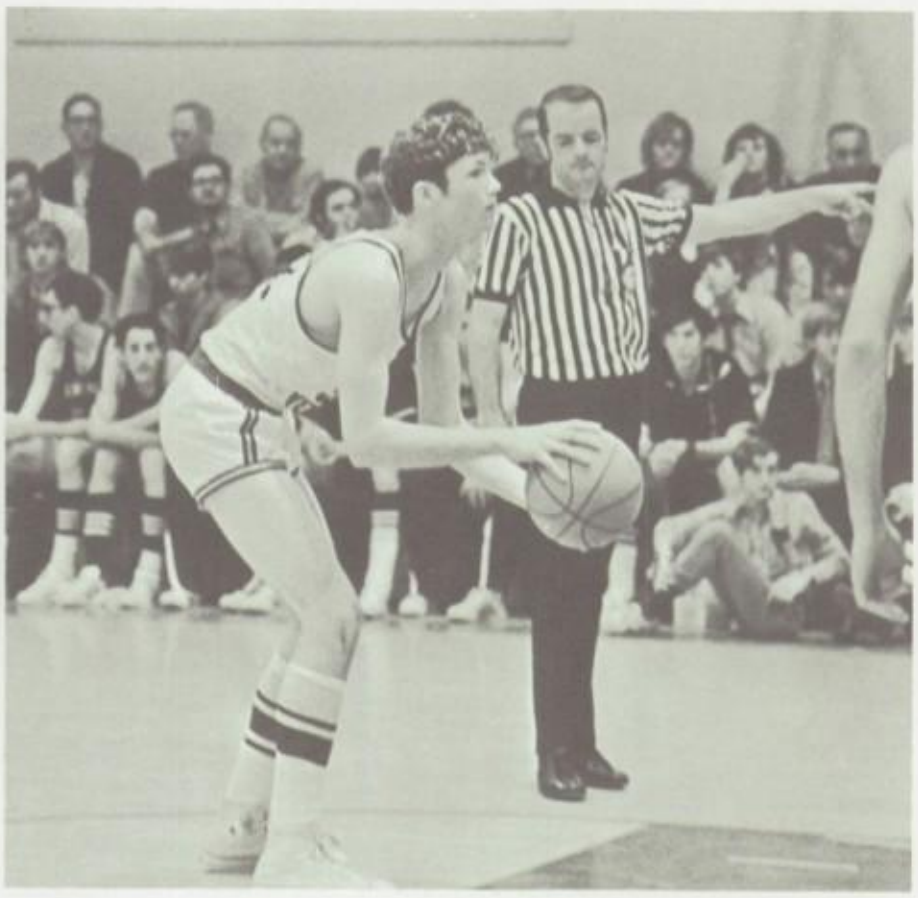
Captain John Rice out jumps his opponent. Randy Knight dribbles to an encounter with an oncoming attacker and Bobo Jordan dribbles by a Lancer to set for a score.





Varsity Basketball: KNEELING: Co-Captains: J. Rice, M. Bannister. STANDING: R. Knight, D. Donahoo, K. DeHaven, R. Polhamus, D. Anderson, B. Pinkepank, S. Curtis, B. Jordan.





Keeping an eye on his opponent, Randy Knight passes the ball to a teammate. In the heat of the game Dave Donahoo finds rest in a foul shot. Up, up and away the game goes on.

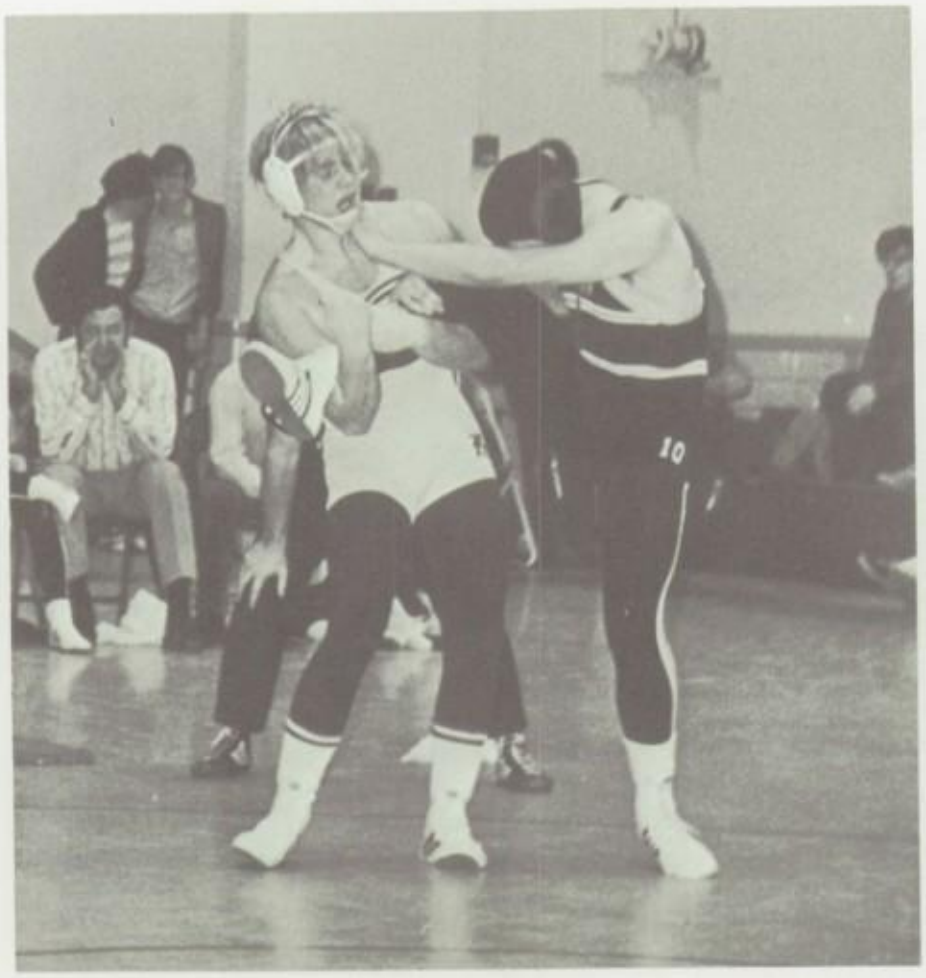
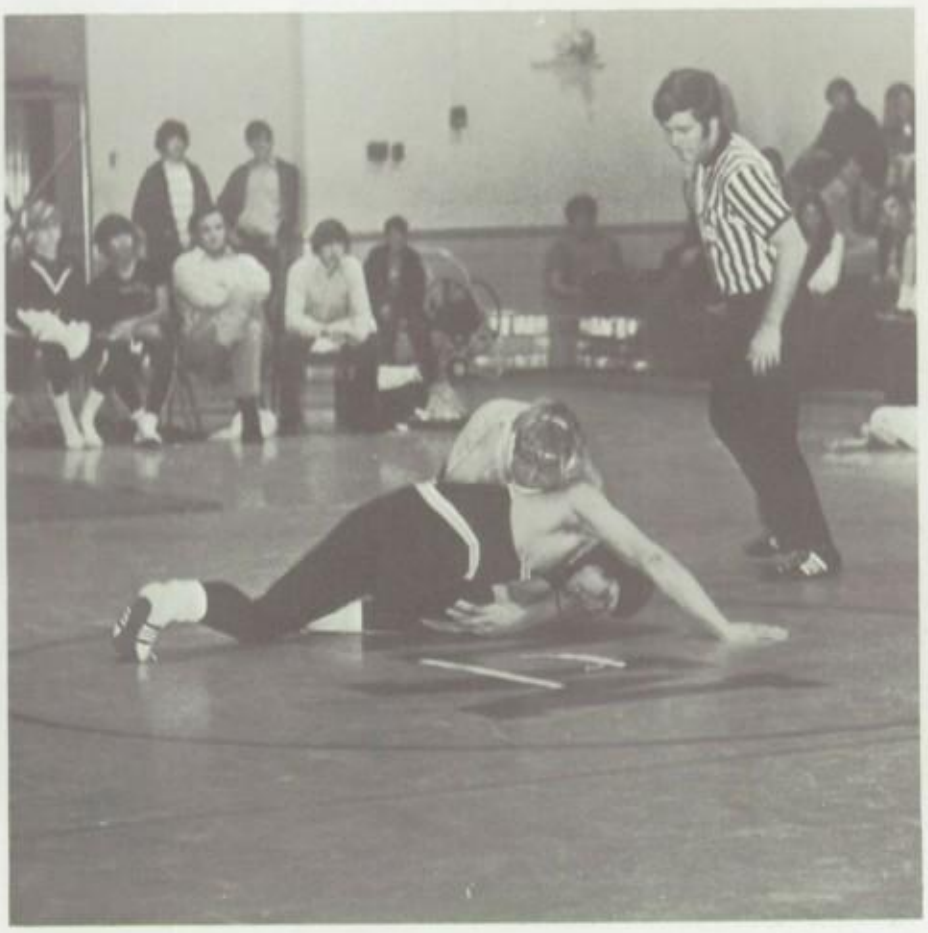
Grapplers did great



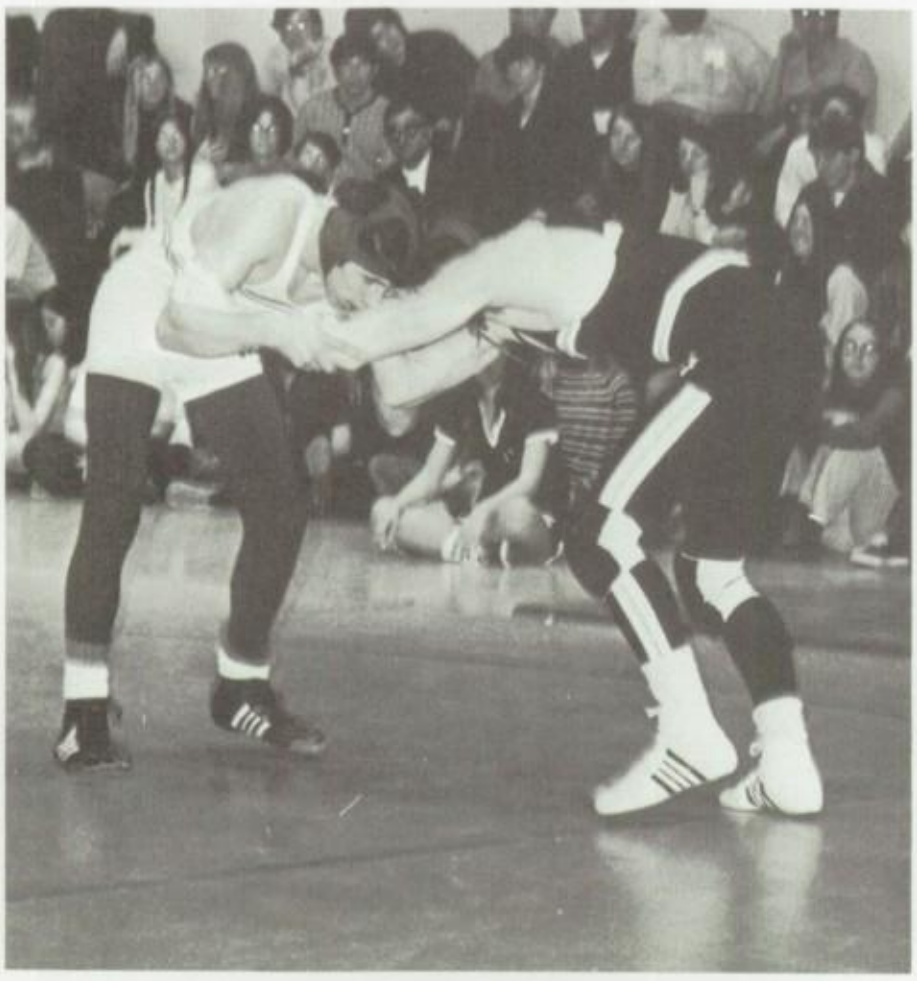


VARSITY WRESTLING

Mount Vernon's "mat-men" were spirited throughout the long, hot, perspiring parctices and the nose grinding matches. Without many returning wrestlers from last year's varsity team, Coaches Kendall and Kerlin shaped the team into a bunch of malign and avarice individuals that would take no less than a victory. This helped considerably in their spirit and in the bringing of some wins to M.V.

Captain Tyler Fadely shows his grappling skills crouched on the mat as well as standing as he puts the proper holds on his victim. Larry Gill puts a pinning hold on his opponent and Brian Hodgson gets the referees attention as he nearly pins his opponent and awaits a slap on the mat.

Max Lorenzo eyes his opponent carefully for the opportunity of a take-down.



David Hedgepeth takes a sturn hold of his opponent to try and gain some points.

Varsity Wrestling — FRONT ROW: B. Paxton, G. Jones, R. Vaughn, M. Scandling, M. Barron, W. Scully, J. Fullerton, M. Lorenzo, Coach Kerlin.

SPRING TRACK

Day after day the taps of golden-winged feet and the thuds of iron "shot" could be heard late in the evening as a well-organized, high spirited team took shape. As the chill of winter melted away, up rose a track team heated for action. Led by veterans Tim Quinn, Lee Spann, and "farmer" Fred Burks, the track team had a high rating in the District meet.

Burning down the track, Dave Kelly leads Majors to victory.

VARSITY BASEBALL

Mount Vernon, off to a bad start with the dismissal of some returning players from last year's team, ran into a streak of bad luck. Overcoming these problems, the Majors were led to victory by Coach Yednock. The team was very aggressive this year and should promote a good team in the future with the return of many varsity players.

CLASSES

Upon entering high school, drastic changes occur for the student. He suddenly finds himself thrown into class after class with a whole new set of faces each time. Instead of tearing apart the class as a unit, it binds it more closely. Students learn to relate to others through new friendships, and through class government. At the same time, more responsibility for his own welfare is thrust upon the student, and final decisions must be made by him alone. At the end of four years, the class radiates from its base, and the unity is lost, but the lasting influences and impressions remain for life.

We readily take our role of leadership

SENIOR CLASS

As Seniors we faced many choices and decisions that are a part of ones last year of high school. We enjoyed many new privileges, and at the same time we came to understand the responsibilities that accompanied them. We began to realize the importance of learning from life and the situations it presents as well as from academic studies. As we near graduation it is with mixed feelings of relief, regret, and anticipation that the Class of 1972 will depart from Mount Vernon. One part of our life has ended with its joys, sorrows, friendships, and hard work. A new life lies ahead.

Class of '74 — Learning now to lead later

Sophomore Class

After our first year at Mount Vernon, the Class of '74 entered into our second year with great ambition and participation. Displaying great enthusiasm at football games and having three sophomores on the varsity starting line-up were just two ways we let our presence be known. With our new officers, we wasted no time in raising money through selling "Happiness is Victory" buttons, holding a Pot Luck dinner, and many other activities. While gaining our foothold in high school life, we now look forward to our coming years of involvement and responsibility.

Freshmen gain outlook and perception

Freshman Class

We, the Class of 1975, entered Mount Vernon, knowing we would have to define ourselves as a class and as individuals before leaving. In this first year, we were exuberant at pep rallies, superb in football, and active in school life. Our studies, friends, and personal endeavors kept us occupied. The large size of our class made us recognize the importance of organization with open channels of communication. From what we have learned about ourselves and about each other in our Freshman year, we have established a firm foundation upon which to build in our forthcoming years.

Faculty

In order for any group to work, there must be cooperation between the authority and the main body. Misunderstandings mean a halt in progress, thus; in a school system where a delay can be crucial, understanding is extremely important. Even if the system continues to move, its effectiveness will be stilted. The principle of give and take between student and teacher, and a sincere effort toward accepting another viewpoint is essential.

Administration

The hub of our busy plant is the first floor administration office. From this core, principal Melvin B. Landes directs the students, teachers, and supporting staff who are the body of Mount Vernon. Acting as additional spokesmen are the assistant principals: Mr. Bernard, Mr. Kazlausky, and Mr. Propps who aid Mr. Landes in his multiform duties.

When we remember 1972, we will remember Mr. Landes giving assembly procedures, Mr. Kazlausky giving the latest bus change, and everyone giving detention. We will remember the shorter days, more students, fewer lunch shifts, and the grand opening of the Dairy Queen.

Mr. Landes discusses one of the increasing problems at the plant. During a pep rally, Mr. Landes relays a word of wisdom to the student body, and a word of warning to the opponents.

Guidance aids students through personal relations

GUIDANCE

Changing schedules, and completing college and job applications are just part of the guidance counselors daily routine. This year students were given a chance to recognize their potential by talking with more freedom to their counselors; the counselors, in turn, tried to help troubled students by listening instead of advising.

A "new" in department methods was the installment of a personal relations group. These specified students met with the counselors for one hour a day, and throughout the year showed remarkable improvements.

Havoc reigned as a new pass system was established in order to accomodate more students in the library. Fines were abolished, paperback books were sold, and over a thousand new books were added to library stock. Miss Vick and Mrs. Trutt continued to strive to teach students to fully utilize the services of the library.

SECRETARIES

One of the more important jobs in a high school is that of secretary. Our secretaries aid everyone in Mount Vernon and help the school run smoothly. ENGLISH

In the second year of the elective program, the English Department included the Junior and Senior classes into it's system. Subjects were many and varied. The students chose the course most interesting to them, whether it was a study of the supernatural, Shakespeare, grammar, children's literature, or "Do Your Own Thing."

Every nine weeks Mr. Thomas stocks the bookstore with new paperback books for the elective system.

Math Department flavored with culture

MATHEMATICS

The year 1971-72 brought few changes to basic recipe for the Math Department's curriculum. Our teachers started with an introduction to mathematics, added a developing skill, for use in daily living, and stirred with solid background (for students needing math in a technical or scientific profession). Bake for four years, and frost with an appreciation for mathematics as an integral part of our culture.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The introduction of an elective system in the upper classes enable the students to develop a more realistic approach to the study of America as a society, and of the American as an individual. Students are encouraged to distinguish value judgements from proven facts and to clarify their own beliefs about these judgements.

Underclass studies are related to man's concern for a better life and world, and emphasized major political, economic, cultural, and social concepts. Throughout these studies, the students became aware of unique and common occurences in relationships and situations of man.

SCIENCE

Issuing the usual quota of unusual smells, the Science Department continued to investigate the earth's environment. Many of these investigations were taped on the department's audio-visual equipment. In order to raise money for this equipment, many of the science students sold candy bars.

In all of the science classes, students searched for new knowledge. Motion and light, animals and cells, minerals and the moon, all were grist to this scientific mill.

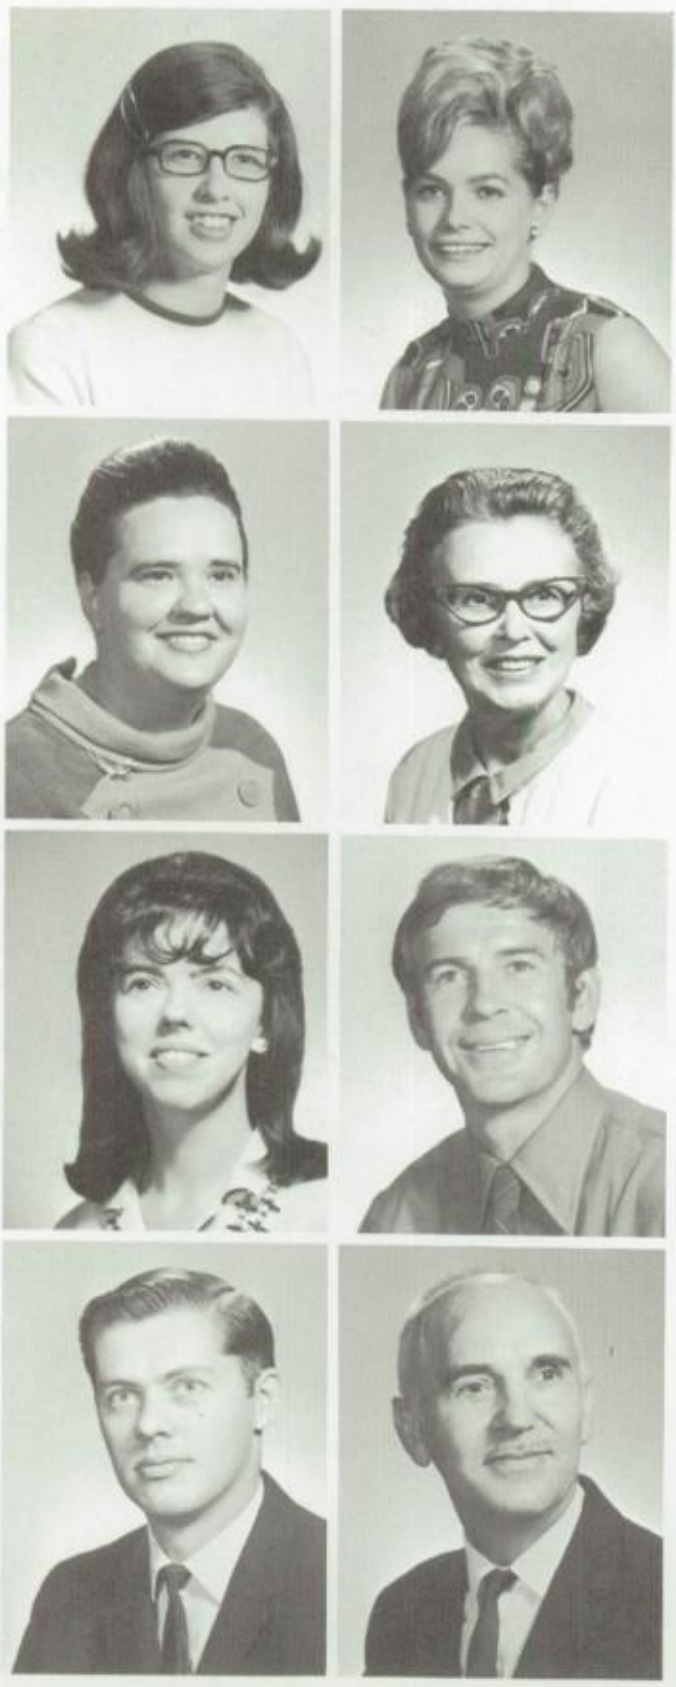
It's accuracy



Correct pronunciation, Mrs. deHostos has found, is important in learning a language. At the Spanish Club Banquet Mr. Vaughn introduces a speaker.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

As foreign language students gained more insight and appreciation for the cultural aspects of the countries they were studying, they held banquets. At these dinners the food cooked and the clothes worn were native to that country.

Students in the language honor societies aided fellow students in need of help by tutoring after school. The Charlatanes, one of the Spanish speaking groups, met regularly for conversation in Spanish.

Through the new Block program students gain an understanding of basic office concepts, fundamental business principals, and the developement of transcription skills.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

A special effort was made in the Vocational Guidance Department to foster the development of the individual's creative and aesthetic qualities. Through Vocational Office Training, Industrial Cooperative Training, Distributive Education, and other classes, students have been able to prepare for a successful career in today's technological society. They have developed an ability to plan, to design, to imagine, to solve, and to proceed with a minimum amount of direction.

SUPPORTING SERVICE PERSONNEL

These people deserve special recognition for their work in Mount Vernon. They cooked our food, cleaned up after us, drove us to and from school, saw us safely across the highway, cured our aches and pains, taught us to drive, and helped us learn to take care of ourselves. We wish to extend our thanks to all these silent people who made this year possible.

With the change in school hours, the bus drivers had to scurry from school to school.

Fairfax County policemen provide a safe crossing for Mount Vernon students.

It is the task of each man to attempt to relate as much of himself as possible to those around him. It is his task to attempt to honor, though not necessarily as his own truths, as much of the world as possible. Maybe true understanding between peoples is an impossibility, the fond dream of idealists, but through acceptance of another man's beliefs, through an honest effort to adjust to conflicting ideas, he may draw nearer to this end of perfect communication.

We rarely experience the brief moments in which to walk and to talk, to think and to listen are enhanced by the naked earth and unobstructed sky. Silence and sun pull out the thoughts that have been saved for times when they may be expressed without distraction. There, for a moment, in a world almost alien to the complexities of our everyday world, we see and feel other than our man-made reality.

1992 - the big year!

Dear Mike,

Thanks for being around when I needed someone. We have shared so much in these last few months... pain, joy, sorrow, and love. And most of all Christ. Our friendship will continue beyond time. I give you all my trust and all else I have to give. Thanks for helping me out when Jack, for being there when he left this summer. I've used your shoulder to cry on many times, and you've always comforted me, and you never turned me away. I'll always appreciate it. I hope + pray that your relationship with Kathy will work out for the best, no matter what it is — "for all things work together for good for those who love the Lord". Roman 8.

I am your friend and I will never let you down. I'll try and be there when the hard times come around. But it's OK if you don't want to be my friend I'll always think of you and love you till the end.

From Karen

Remember the friendship we'll always have in each other.

Love always, Karen

Good luck in everything you do!

Keep smiling !!) Thanks again!!

Mike,

How are you? Well its finally the "big" year is over. Just think we'll soon be out in the cold, cruel world. But when things get down just remember me (then you'll really feel bad) No seriously, we have had a lot of good times and we have had our disagreements, fights, arguements, battles etc "but"
I think I can safely say that the good times outnumber the bad.
I think that we really learned from each other and I honestly don't know what my Senior year would of been without you (alot better I'm sure)
No I'm really kidding. I think I'll really miss you when I go and I'm sure I'll think of you and everyone.
~~When~~ Just remember all the "things" we "taught" each other (even though you don't believe I already knew.

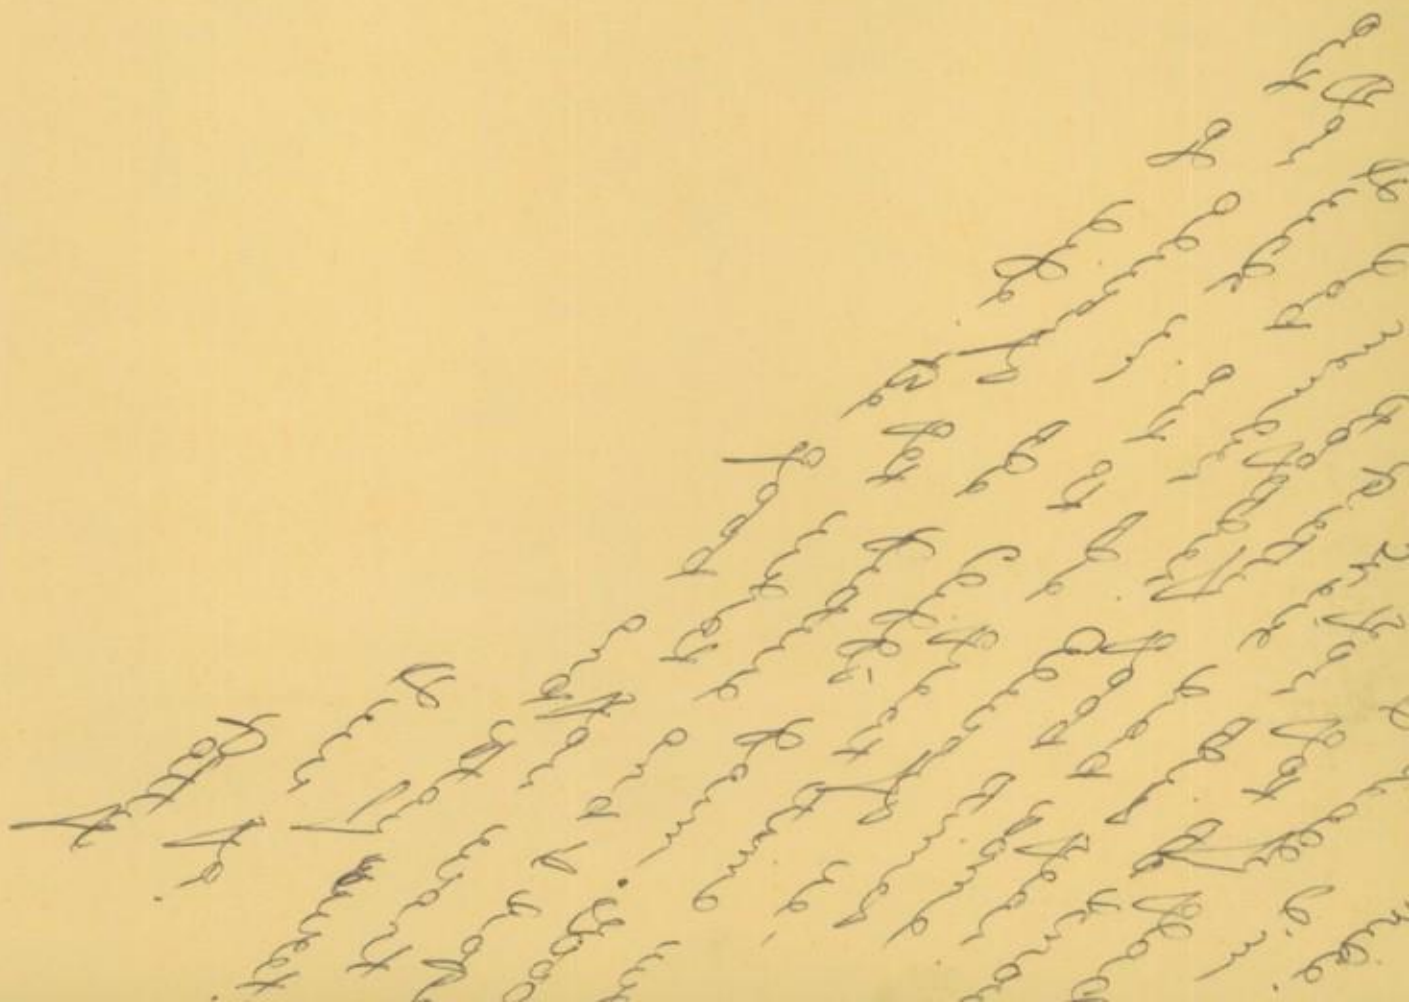
— (notice who I'm right next to) →

But anyway, as I keep repeating myself (on second thought this time I won't) So I guess I'll sign off and leave some room for someone else! Be good and "try" to stay out of trouble! Love you beautiful, wonderful, kind, sweet, merry, georgous, loveable, fantastic (also most of all modest) and anything nice you can think of.

Don't forget me (although after all this I don't see how you can)


Liz
